DATING TIPS

Dating is hard. But, hey look at you, that special someone said yes to a date now it's terrifying, we all know this but that's why I am here to help. Sure the last date I had was a date that included jeopardy and dairy queen so clearly I know romance. But, I'm trying my best to help you so you don't blow it so, here are some first date tips to help drive away those jitters you are feeling.

1. Find, the right maturity for the date, such as like going for coffee may be standard. However, we are young spry people going for coffee really makes you sound like a 50 year old. On the other hand going to an arcade or the lego store seems tempting but, then your date will feel as if they are babysitting.
2. Movie dates are a no go, everyone goes on those be more original or you will be seen as a regular person and you aren't. Side Note: Unless you are watching Pirates of the Caribbean or National Treasure then you are doing something wrong if you go watch a movie make sure it's not too sad, childish, or serious. See my recommended films above as well as the film Interstellar.
3. Don't overdo it with gifts or anything like don't go to Target and buy chocolates that is a little weird. Now ice cream is always key but don't get anything too complicated for ice cream or end it with it all over your face.
4. No sports that will cause an competitiveness that is not needed to start any relationship. Dinner is a good option unless you are like me and eat weird. Judge your own eating style if it is on the weird side I would just stick to a walk in the park.
5. Make sure you have talking points. Its bound to get very awkward out there with all the pauses and that jazz so I would recommend that you keep a handy page of talking notes.
6. Stay off your phone on the date. No reason to look at your phone at all unless like a huge emergency is a foot just be safe and keep your phone in your car or something. Stay focused on your date they are the most important part of your day/night.
7. Keep it low stakes. Very low stakes nothing too overwhelming on this date something simple such as a walk in the park or chipotle dinner. No going to like the fireman's ball that's too much. Don't really talk too much about yourself unless asked. I get it your a cool person but this date is about learning who this amazing person you asked out is.
8. Biggest one yet: make sure you have fun don't over think it at all or get nervous it is not that huge of a deal.....okay it might be but don't think like that right now.

Anyway those dating tips have a fun and safe valentine's day!! Love Josh

STUDENTS FOR JIMMY CARTER 2020

Why Jimmy?

- No Kennedy's running this time around
- Builds Homes, Not Walls
- Pretty good at the whole "having morals" and "being ethical"
- Can give away the Pananma Canal again
- Served almost half a century ago but still only 20 young years older than Bernie or Biden
- Dan Aykroyd can still play him on SNL
- Old launch codes are probably still good, right?
