A CONCISE SUMMARY OF DENISON'S RESPONSE TO THE CORONAVIRUS

Students have been asked to vacate Denison's campus by March 16 and bring all of their belongings with them, if possible.

This decision comes after three cases of COVID-19 were confirmed in the Cleveland area (as of Tuesday, March 10). Governor Mike DeWine declared a state of emergency and advised Ohio colleges to cease face-to-face classes.

After much anticipation as to how Denison would respond to the novel coronavirus, college president Adam Weinberg sent an email to students and faculty last night.

Students were instructed not to return until April 3 at the earliest; this will require students to leave campus for three weeks instead of one. With the possibility of remote learning until the end of the semester, Weinberg urged students to bring all of their belongings with them.

Regardless of whether Denison opts to return to normal classes after April 3, remote classes will begin on March 23. Beginning next week, professors will be trained in teaching online courses.

Students were initially required to move out by this Saturday, March 14, by 9 a.m. at the latest. In light of requesting students leave with most of their personal belongings, however, this deadline has been extended to Monday, March 16.

The decision to extend spring break and instigate remote classes is in line with many other Ohio colleges, but canceling the remainder of the semester after this three-week hiatus is still a looming possibility.

If you would like additional information or have specific questions regarding this information, you can email COVID19@denison.edu, or visit <https://denison.edu/campus/health/covid-19-coronavirus>. If a student requires housing during this time, a form was provided in the email sent by Weinberg last night.

MY JOURNEY TO GET VERIFIED ON INSTA

Some of you may not know this but, I have an instagram account, and in my media theory class, a great class recommended it, we are studying social media celebrities. I then had the dumb idea of attempting to become insatgram famous, so I joined tik tok and attempted to link the 2 accounts because that is how Charlie Damelio does it. So, I posted a few toks hoping to gain some fame, alas they weren't as funny as I thought cause you see I am not what some say "funny" so, that was true failure. I mean the video I posted was me trying to cut a dog with a butter knife and going "thick like butter" (ps if you think its funny pls share it). So, next steps since those who tik tok business was a real let down is to try to break into the big tv game ya know it's where you can film like multiple minute long videos, which is where my comedy excels. It is a slow burn. The first thing I am thinking of is a prank video of putting tin foil on someone's car, I know it's hilarious. I also may try to get into the meme game but, then they just know the page they don't know you and if I want to be famous like they gotta know its a 64 dude who looks like a james bond villian's younger nephew. I mean look I am no brand pusher I wear the same brand of costco pants, which I mean costco if you are reading this please sponsor me. I also, barely travel so people following me for spectacle aren't getting much. But, this is only step one. I will be filming a few videos for IG tv to try to get some traction, mostly videos of me trying to be funny. If you want in on the ground level please follow me at joshhollabackatyoupoe on instagram. K thanks bye depending on how this goes I may or may not do a follow up but, lets be honest this will be hard.
