

bullsheet@denison.edu | denisonbullsheet.com | @DUBullsheat

The Bullsheet, a forum for news, humor, and community dialogue, is funded by DCGA and is printed each day that classes are in session. Submissions must be sent before 6:30pm for next day submission via e-mail to: bullsheet@denison.edu. Submissions herein solely reflect the opinions of the authors.

Edited last night by: Isabella "Delivered" this morning by: The World Wide Web
vol. LXVI / no. 41 / March 31, 2020

WHAT CLASSIC MOVIE AND BOOK MONSTERS WOULD BE THE BEST ROOMMATE

Now that the housing lottery is coming up many of you fine people have settled your roommate situation I think it is a good time to reflect upon all those could-have-beens, all those horrible roommates you could have had, but didn't. Specifically, classic movie monsters. So here it is, William's definitive ranking of what monsters would be the best, and worst, roommates.

1. The Blob. Talk about a bad roommate. This dude never vacuums, won't even talk to you, and leaves goop everywhere. -3/10 for slimy.
2. Count Dracula. You don't have to interact with him because he is always asleep, he won't eat your snacks, and you don't have to fight over who's turn it is to use the communal mirror. Also, every now and then he will invite you to fabulous soirees. So what if you have to invite him in everytime he wants to enter the room. 4/10 for soirees. -3 points for stupid rules.
3. The Wolf-Man. They are just normal dudes 90% of the time. Pretty chill, may smell like a dog sometime. Just treat a full moon like being sex-aisled, and it's basically the same as having a normal roommate. 9/10 for being normal. -5 points for being hyperallergenic.
4. The Creature from the Black Lagoon. If Res-Com asks, just claim that he is your pet fish.
5. A Triffid. Everybody loves carnivorous houseplants.
6. The Invisible Man. He just a normal dude, but invisible. Could lead to some awkward situations though.
7. The Phantom of the Opera (1925 film version). Other than the fact that he is extremely dramatic and likes create dastardly traps he is probably pretty cool. Though he does have a penchant for torture, which is Not Cool™. Strangulation is okay. Dropping a chandelier on the audience is okay. But torture is not cool, especially if you are torturing your roommate. Also he definitely plays the organ at three in the morning.

– William Kelsey, Newbie Staff

HAPPY EQUAL PAY DAY!

Equal Pay Day is the symbolic day when women's earnings "catch up" to men's earnings from the previous year.

Imagine if we already had equal pay for women. Equal pay during the COVID-19 crisis would help individuals and families buy and boost the economy. Everyone should be able to purchase what they need. Let's make sure employers heed pay equity laws. Stand with women and TAKE ACTION! Learn what you can do at AAUW.*

Every state has a gender pay gap and some are wider than others. Check out this interactive map: the gender pay gap by state.

*AAUW Website: <https://www.aauw.org>

Map: <https://www.aauw.org/resource/gender-pay-gap-by-state-and-congressional-district/>

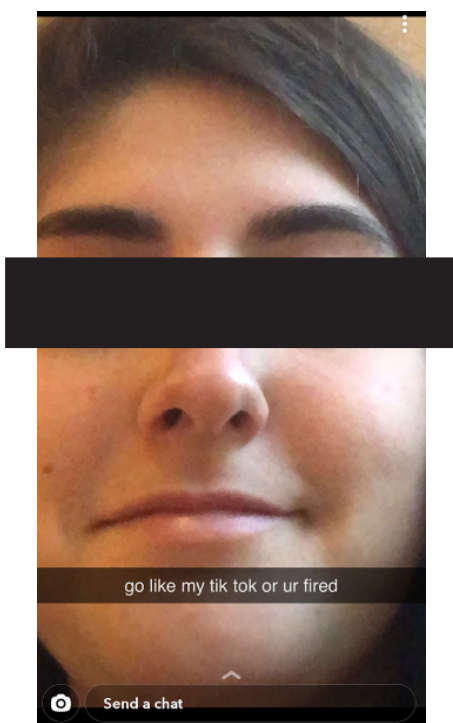

– Submitted by Samantha Smith,
Financial Wellness Coordinator

SNAPS, LIES, AND VIDEO(TIK)TOK: AN EXPOSE ON THE BULLSHEET'S CORRUPT LEADERSHIP

Hello all. It is with a heavy heart that I must report: The Bullsheet, highly revered and respected publication, winner of several Pulitzer Prizes and an EGOT*, beloved beacon of journalistic integrity on Denison e-campus, is run by monsters. "No!" and "But how can this be?!" you, the readers, cry. I know, I know, I didn't want to believe it either. After all, if we have to #cancel The Sheet, what are we supposed to read? The CLIC Constant Contacts? The Knowlton Note? Lord, the news? But I have an obligation to share the truth with you all.

Here it is: two head members of Bullsheet staff failed to grant me Duo Push access into The Sheet email for, like, 25 minutes. Readers—I sent so many push notifications. I sent snaps. I sent messages in the groupchat. And still, my pleas went unanswered—or as you'll soon see, cruelly taunted. This was prime time I wasted, time that could have been spent on important things, like watching Tiger King. Finding it hard to believe someone (two someones, in fact!!) could do something so awful? Readers, I have evidence. And not just any evidence—I have the highest level of currency in today's digital world. I have SCREENSHOTS.

Warning: the images you are about to see may be disturbing to some viewers, especially those with a moral compass. Names and identities have been altered/concealed to protect the not-so-innocent.

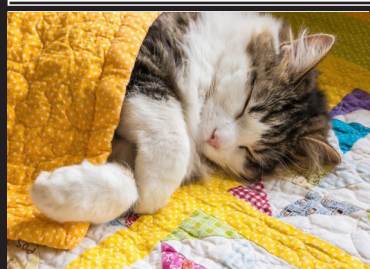

*Pictured: The snap I received after sending a video of me attempting to log into the The Bullsheet email. A classic example of a corrupt authority member abusing their power to target, manipulate, and exploit their subordinates.
Jeff Bezos take notes*

*Pictured: A chat log between a head member of Bullsheet staff and myself in which said member of staff openly admits to seeing and ignoring my desperate pushes for help.
Readers, is this a suppression of my 1st Amendment rights? You decide: The options are Yes and Guillotine*

*NOTE: The Bullsheet has not actually won any of these awards. How could it, with management like this?

– Isabella Puccini, Senior Editor
Basically a one-woman Boston Globe

me for the past 2 weeks

Staff "quarantine hoarding item" Box
Jax "LUSH hand sanitizer" Preyer, Managing Editor
Isabella "coffee (priorities!)" Puccini, Senior Editor
Sophia "GOOD tp (fk Cottonelle)" Menconi, Senior Editor
James "Alaskan fish" Whitney, Sophomore Editor
Zach "library books" Correia, Head Writer
Jay "all the ramen @my store (where IS it Jay)" Huff, Senior Writer
Charlie "Cottonelle (bad move)" Schweiger, Junior Writer
Elizabeth "puzzles" Arterberry, Junior Writer
Katie "hot-pink surgical masks" Kerrigan, Junior Writer
Jack "bear spray (just in case)" May, Sophomore Writer

