CAMPUS CRIME REPORT

Heyyyy, so I meant to be doing this biweekly since the crime report is one of the few consistent and interesting things that the Bullsheet does. That didn't end up happening, and I took a hiatus from reporting crime for a little over a month. I wish I could say I've been using that time off productively, but I definitely haven't been doing a single thing that would make my mother proud. Here's all the noteworthy crimes from 8/26 through 9/11, I PROMISE I'll run the rest of them next Thursday. Special thanks to Campus Safety for being super friendly and giving me cookies while I copied these down from the big blue book o' crimes.

These are all crimes, policy violations, reports of property damage, and really whatever I found interesting. Many duplicate logs are combined; an individual who had three unique charges of underage drinking, vandalism, and selling bootleg Seinfeld DVDs all at once would have that reported in the same little blurb. Many of the reports in the campus safety logs are edited here to protect the privacy of students, others are omitted because they're boring, and many get thrown out because they aren't crimes (welfare checks on students, people with broken legs getting transported to the hospital, etc.)
