EMMA WROTE SOMETHING!

#protectedsheeran

This is probably gonna lose me some friends but you know what, sometimes the truth hurts. Now before you jump to any conclusions, this is most definitely NOT an Ed Sheeran fan-piece ... it literally couldn't be more the opposite.

I know in these trying times, we should all be protecting each other, it's the decent thing to do. But there's one person who needs protecting more than anyone else. For the sake of all humanity, we have to protect one ginger man or else everything will fall apart. That's right, our favorite uncomfortable red head, Mr. Ed Sheeran. Eddy. E-Dizzle. Edwardo Sheer-man. Ed Sheeran CANNOT die. I'm not saying this because I love Ed Sheeran and can't bear the thought of life without him. Oh no no no no no no. We must protect ed for one reason only: the Ed Sheeran renaissance would be something I simply could not live through.

You see if Mr. Ed man decides to kick the bucket any time soon, for the foreseeable future we will be listening to Ed Sheeran and Ed Sheeran sea shanties only for at least a full year. Slayer's tracklist of yacht rock and Bruce Springsteen will be replaced by this guitar-wielding menace until we all graduate.

I like some of the ed man's songs, sure. A-team? Fine. Lego House? Why not. Sometimes they hit the spot (keyword SOMETimes). But a full year... at least...of ONLY Edward. Just sit with that for a second. Tell me it doesn't make you want to walk into the ocean even a little bit. His songs get stuck in my head when I don't even listen to them so the remembering Ed movement would drive me into the ground. I feel similarly about cold play but I can't get into that for my own safety.

So, if you see Ed, we must protect him. Rise up Ed, my king, you got this!

is there a soul in there????? Who's to say???????
