INTRODUCING OUR 2021 PLEDGE CLASS

CLAIRE ANDERSON: is an only child, and plays the saxophone.

EVIE WATERS: Despite a twenty-minute interview, we were left questioning whether Evie was on crack or just tweakin'. Bribing the staff with water from the heavens (Kirkland's Signature), we were swooning from the get go over this comedic legend. Her favorite drink, however, is Shitty K, so no brownie points there. But we didn't accept this Southern Gem because of what she drinks, and criticizing a gal for drinking cheap liquor is not in my job description. For her debut, she wants to write about how only boring people do coke; keep your eyes peeled! She will also punt a baby (for free, I might add). So, WELCOME HOME, EVIE.

NEWBIES, CONTINUEEEEDDD!!!!

LENA HANRAHAN: Lena NEEDs to know how Abe Lincoln would have played Mario-Kart. She ponders this as she listens to The Hobbit audiobook, and fantasizes about the one and only Jar Jar Binks. Welcome to Granville's Largest Daily Publication, Lena!

LILY ANDERSON: Lily's father was almost a priest, and she can teach you how to dougie (but not for free). A huge fan of Pitch Perfect, Lily's solution to the Israel-Palestine conflict is to hold a good ole-fashioned riff off! A burpee reject, good thing the ole' Bullsheet has room for Lily and not one of her triplets, and that she will not be a victim of cannibalism if time travel is ever invented.

MCCLELLAN SMITH: Even though he wants to do inappropriate things to the beloved desert, flan, and your favorite childhood character, Gromit (but you couldn't prove that in a court of law)! Mick also wants to be ginger so badly that he sold his soul for red hair. I wonder what a real ginger would have to say about this matter. We later discovered that he only applied to be on staff because he just wants to do drugs, listen to music, and hang out with beautiful women!
