ALL-INCLUSIVE GUIDE TO (UNDERCLASSMEN) HOUSING

The upcoming seniors have just completed their round of housing, and, in true Denison wif fashion, the site crashed within the hour, inciting campus-wide meltdowns. Denison’s housing process is literally anything but seamless, so we are here to guide you through the housing process! Isn’t it the silliest coincidence that any time that Denison gives students agency, it’s the most stressful thing ever (e.g. housing, registration)? Some conspiracy theorists have suggested that Big Denison creates this ruckus on purpose to keep their therapists employed....

BUILDING GUIDE

Huffman Hall: This hall is a very viable building if you are a swimmer, or if you want to break in the dining hall after hours via elevator. One perk of living in Huff is that you won’t need to buy any candles or air freshener, because your room will reek of barbecue tofu nuggets! If you’re living in Huff, you’re probably a sophomore looking to live in a six-man, so best of luck, this should be a fun test of y’all’s friendships!

East Hall: East is quaint, substance-free housing, and living here means that you could either pass a drug test and live substance free, or you snort cocaine in your Honda Pilot on weekdays. If you live here, I hope you’re able to make new friends, try alcohol for the first time, and lose your v-card. You will need febreze for this one.

Shaw Hall: Congrats on studying abroad I guess? Good move on Denison’s part for putting all of the abroad students together, because I promise that no one else cares about when you ate a baguette and took pictures in front of the Eiffel Tower on your parent’s dime.

Shepardson Hall: They say it’s what’s on the inside that counts, and this adage is exemplified by Shepardson Hall, which looks like a cheap motel where hookers get murdered. A nice concept, you’ll have the shittiest kitchen, the smallest bathroom, and a roommate that wants you to know that semen is not meant for the butt.

Beaver Hall: We’ll start this with some questions for you. Which upperclassman fraternity brother made you get a six-man? Which frat? And do you really think they got rid of asbestos that quickly? At least you can say that you lived in Beaver; that’s iconic.

Sawyer Hall: You should try for Beaver over this one. They’re the same but at least Beaver has name recognition and street cred. And, the Asbestos Scare of 2018 was kinda metal tbh.

King Hall: Denison’s very own panopticon, King’s silly ass hallways ensure you’ll never know peace. A fun fact about King Hall is that the rooms used to be single apartments for Denison profs (Ask Dr. McDonnell about it!) Equipped with literal furnaces in each room, King gets so sweltering that your hair sticks to the walls. None of your East Quad friends will visit you down on South Swamp, but you can stay busy by setting off the fire alarms or tossing glasses of water into the electric sockets.

Take the Hassle out of Housing!

Rising juniors and sophomores: Think the housing process is stressful now? Just wait until your laptop crashes during your 10-second timeslot. But there is another way! Let Nina do your housing for you!

Let a tried-and-true graduating senior who eats stress for breakfast register you for housing. Venmo $5 to @ninacosdon with your Denison email in the payment line and Nina will contact you to gauge your housing preferences and compile a viable list of room options. With extensive knowledge of Denison Housing and inimitable ability to work around a deadline, Nina will get you the best room possible or your money back.

Curtis Hall: Imagine you’re a first-year, living in Curtis and you choose housing three doors down from your current room. Is that not weird to anyone else? At least ole’ Curt’s getting renovated.

The Homestead: You missed the application deadline, good luck finding sustainable housing on campus (you can’t)! Now you’ll never be able to raise and slaughter your own chicken </3
