A GUIDED MEDITATION

We received this bodacious submission today from a regular Bullsheet collaborator, known only as Zach Gnelson. We know this name is probably fake, but we also know that this particular Bullsheet submitter is in the class of 2024. They didn't leave much context as to what exactly this article is (poetry?), but I, as managing editor, have decided to interpret it as a guided meditation through poetry. I recommend you find yourself a quiet nook with soft lighting, and recite these words to yourself, reflecting inwards. Please enjoy our spiritual Bullsheet journey, courtesy of Zach Gnelson.

Your worst nightmare begins now.

It's 9oclock on a Saturday. The regular crowd shuffles in. There's an old woman sitting next to me making love to her tonic and gin. She said, "Grandson can you play me a memory?" I'm not really sure how it goes, but it's sad and it's sweet and I knew it complete, when I wore an old woman's clothes.

You know you're in a BD (Bad dream? Blythe Dahlem?), but you can't wake up.

The sun is rising from under your eyelids, but your eyes stay shut. Your grandmother calls from beyond, "sweetie, the pie's been cut!" Ripped to shreds by guilt and wetted beds, "I pissed myself again, fuck!"

It's time to holler—the Good Book says.
Running away—Soprano from the Feds.
It's Saturday, remember? Time to dust off the fez.
Poppin' molly from a dispenser, mighty swell be Pez.

Big Time Adolescence
That's Denny for ya,
Give her your two cents,
(It's grandma again) She thinks you're grandpa.

"No, no Me-maw, I'm your grandson!"
Kisses on the cheek now never felt so sweet.
Seldom before would she let loose her rectum.
It's only a matter of time before Dementia Street.

Eyes wide shut, no wonder the world is so tough
Me-maw feeding me gumdrops like a pig from a trough
"But aren't these little candies made from horse meat?"
"Swallow them whole, honey, or you'll be the treat!"
Never shall I walk again / The corporate defeat.
