GIVE ME YOUR TUITION, LUNCH MONEY AND ANYTHING ELSE YOU GOT

Denny has really seemed to hit an obvious all time low, as they broadcast being strapped for cash after implementing the most ridiculously unnecessary policies to squeeze all the change out of our pockets. You now have to pay at least $10 when you call campo after locking yourself out, so you better keep your key on you or you'll be racking up a major fine for calling campo to do what they're paid to do in the first place. And don't ask for extra chipotle mayo at Slayter cause they'll charge you for that too. What's next? Putting meters in the bathrooms to access toilet paper???

In honor of Denison's new policies, heres a board game to play while you're sitting outside your locked room waiting for Campo to show up. Don't forget to tip them on the way out.

A SHOUT OUT TO SENIORS

Seeing that its our last semester here at Denison, I thought we could quickly be nostalgic for 0.2 seconds before quickly returning to the homely feelings of excitement and relief to be leaving. Here are some earlier (freshman year-ish) “remember when...” moments of our unique Denison experience.

Sunnies parties were popping

Tuition wasn't as high

PARTY TENT (unless that was just a fever dream fuelled by alcohol

The Moonies didn't exist

Whistler sucked (oh wait, it still does)

provided by Denison)

Steve Carell casually came to visit

Around The World wrecked relationships faster than Covid hit campus

Mo Bamba was the go-to party song

East quad was for upperclassmen

REMEMBER WHEN....

The Doobie actually had the ability to air on the radio (91.1 WDUB)

Silverstein was a parking lot that saw more dead blunts than actual cars

The coffee shop in Slayter was part of the food area

Largest DCGA forum of all time (IYKYK)

Michael D Eisner forced the theatre department to do BoJack Horseman

Taco Dan's was Wednesday through Saturday go-to without the fear of every night being closing night

They sold tacos at the nest

The hilltoppers were actually good (but making a comeback?) --ode to the curly haired twins when they were students and not just legends

Jax was head editor of the Bullsheet

The flag pole and front of Slayter were closed for construction

COVID DIDN'T EXIST
