!NEW! WHAT TO DU UPDATES! YEAH!

It's that time of the month...yep the end of January! Wow and guess what? Change is right around the corner! Is it the new up charging of sauces in Slayter? Nope. How about the water treatment plant that everyone is so excited to see? Sorry, not that either. Could it possibly be about my favorite social media platform? Yes that's right, your favorite app/website, What To DU, is excited to launch its 2.0 model! And let me tell you, there are some very exciting changes!

RELATIONSHIP STATUS

Similar to the Lost and Found feature, every single user who updates their status will send a notification to every app owner! This is perfect for those who have been banned from dating websites!

LATIN!

YELP STYLE DINING HALL REVIEWS

If you wanna know if its worth trooping it to the dining hall when they're serving Captain Crunch Chicken (real meal served b4) you can now see a detailed review included with stars and a price point.

PUBLIC GPAS

Comparison is the thief of joy? Nah its the #1 motivator for all the hustlers out there.

SNAPPLE FACTS

In the pursuit of never ending education, mind boggling and interesting facts will be included every hour such as "Shaggy from Scooby Doo does not have an Adam's apple" or "Oklahoma State vegetable is a watermelon".

TRACKING

Have you ever wanted to find someone on campus who you're not close enough to have their location for on Find My Friends. Well now, What To DU will include a detailed map of where every Denisonian is (nothing like snap maps fyi)

STORY FUNCTION

EVERY social media has one, so this one's a no brainer!

RATE MY DENISONIAN

Just like the popular webpage Rate My Professor, members of the Denison community can openly critique and compliment their classmates in order to help others! Because, dang, making an impression on your own is just way too hard, ammiright?

BATHROOMS

Journalism is an intrinsic part of our democracy. Only by sharing the truth can we—nevermind, here's an article about the best bathrooms on campus.

5. Mitchell Locker Room

Pros: Located near the hot tub. Since most of the sports teams have their own locker rooms, you can rest easy knowing that those ~~nuteases~~ cool cats haven't been in there. It's also on a separate water line, so when Ohio gets slightly cold and all the other pipes explode, it's the one place that still functions.

Cons: I always feel like the ~~exercise freaks~~ attractive healthy people are judging me for using our state-of-the-art fitness center only for hot tubs and toilets.

4. Burton Morgan Fifth Floor

Pros: The sole purpose of admissions is ~~tricking~~ convincing everyone that Denison is the best, and that applies to their bathrooms. Always clean, a variety of lovely scents, and interesting wallpaper for the poor fools who forgot their phones.

Cons: a lot of stairs. Admissions doesn't want prospies meeting anyone not getting paid by Denison.

3. Barney Davis Basement

Pros: It has a shower. In a building that hasn't been sciencey since 1905. Other than that, it's a normal bathroom. But this shower! Spacious and open concept. The showerhead looks high-quality too; better than any other I've seen on campus. Why? Who for? I'll give $20 to anyone who uses it. I'll give $100 to someone who leaves class, takes a shower, and comes back.

Cons: Really cold in the winter. The faucets are cold too, so what if the shower never gets hot? I've been too scared to try. This is my biggest concern here at Denison. It keeps me up at night.

2. Knapp Basement

Pros: Basements are the places where secrets are kept. Sometimes that means a chaise lounge with suspicious stains from the seventies. Sometimes, it means a private individual bathroom. There are two down there, featuring thick doors and deadbolts strong enough to stop a SWAT team.

Cons: if you get trapped, no one will ever find you. Also, no shower, which I guess is important to me.

Dishonorable Mentions: quick shoutout to the worst bathrooms: Fellows 2nd floor (weird flushes), Crawford (the whole building is a toilet), and Bio Reserve (may have been a groundhog den).

1. LOCATION REDACTED

Pros: This place has high windows providing both homey light and privacy. Warm in winters and cool in summers, the super loud fan guarantees maximum privacy. The conveniently located power sockets mean that you can stay for days if necessary. It is beautifully decorated, big enough for a bed, and with yet another inexplicable shower, this bathroom is better than most dorms. The only reason I haven't moved in is because such a beautiful secret garden must be shared.

Cons: but not shared with you, obviously. I'm not going to tell because then all y'all ~~commies~~ public-spirited citizens will ruin it. Only the chosen few may know the truth.
