WORST THINGS IN THE FIRST 3 WEEKS OF SCHOOL

First-Year Relationships

I hate walking to class and seeing two first-years holding hands. They always take up the whole sidewalk when holding hands. Why do they insist on holding hands but being 10 feet away from each other? I hate them. Also, how are you already dating each other? They've been here for three weeks! They probably met each other like 12 days ago and your first date was at Curtis dining hall. They don't even know each other's middle names. I'm upset at the first-year relationships taking up all the space on the side-walk, but we all know they will come to an end in the next two weeks when they break-up.

DU Votes

Before I say anything I want to admit that DU votes does a very important job for our community and does it well, but with that being said they are so annoying. If I get asked "are you registered to vote?" one more time I'm going to throw my head through a wall. How many times do I have to tell them that I'm registered to vote and have requested my absentee ballot. It is the third week of school and they have already asked me like fifteen times.

Slayter Market Lines

Getting a burger at Slayter is like going to the DMV. The lines are huge and I wonder why? Probably because Denison decided to let in every single First-year student who thought about applying. The poor Slayter workers show up to work and have to make sandwiches for every Ethan, Cole, Emma, Sarah, and Chad that lives in the entirety of the Midwest. How many full cows get eaten from the Slayter Grill? Soon Denison is going to make a meal plan that has fast passes to the front of the Slayter Market lines.

Frat Flu

I will be sitting in class and I will hear someone in the back coughing up a lung. I don't know what it is about the first few weeks back to school but every single sickness you can think of goes around. There is stuff going around that I've never even heard of. Just stay safe y'all.
