BULLSHEET MEATING NOTES

I think we should crush Hospitals!

All: Crush Hospitals!!!

Claire: We should destroy a vital part of America's infrastructure!!

(claire is either a war criminal or has just seen way too much of the darkside of the american healthcare system

So imagine this you are ust sitting on the steps of your townhouse in New York and this gorgeous bombshell walks by, she's dressed skimpy but not too skimpy, just enough to get it going for you. She walks pretty close to you but not too close like she's walking closer to you than the streat. And you yell out "hey pretty mama" and she doensn't respond so you go "heyy give me a smile", and your like w"what i was being nice why didn't she respond. That's catcalling, that's what catcalling is. Oh I get it. Now that I have a townhouse in Brooklynn it all makes sense.

DCGA MORE LIKE DCGHEYTHAT'SMY SCOOTER

Wake up everyone! It's your favorite washed up former President with three meetings worth of updates! Don't worry, I'll try and focus on the highlights. DCGA recently approved the Formula 1 Club. I guess that makes sense cuz based on how people drive around campus half of yall already think you're in Formula 1. I was late to the Senate that day cuz I was getting free crepes down at Eisner (what's the worst that could happen? Is Alex Pan gonna spank me?). Then, Speaker Waters got stern with the Senate saying "If you haven't joined a committee you NEED to". Okay then Speaker Waters make me.

The most dramatic item of the last three weeks was the election for the Retention and Enrollment Committee. During debate, it was revealed that the candidates behavior had been extremely gross and harmful to the campus last year which divided the Senate. Some were apologists, figuring "Idk he seems like a good guy now", "Last year was last year", "We still need someone to be on the committee, keep bias out of it." Whatever happened to being discerning moral agents lol? Others felt DCGA felt like it was their duty to be judge, jury, and executioner. One Senator even suggested that DCGA should have access to conduct records?! Right! What could possibly go wrong with that!? The debate devolved into some weird mixture of McCarthyism, the January 6 Hearings, and a TeenVogue gossip column. After about 20 minutes the candidate was brought back before the Senate to answer for his crimes, delivering a speech that was eerily similar to a forced Youtuber apology video. After 45 minutes, his election was denied but most of the Senate abstained (how is 45 minutes not enough time to decide on your vote?!).

Alex led us in a vision building and goal setting session last week. We conducted an on-line survey where the last question was "Where do you hope DCGA will be in 3 years?"

Here are my favorite responses:

Abolished
Knobel Hall
Idk

For me? Well. I just want everyone to realize that the real DCGA was the friends we made along the way.

This week, 10 minutes had passed since DCGA was supposed to start and it hadn't yet so I attempted to stage a coup. I went to the front to take control of DCGA but President Pan came to stop me. I was told that commandeering the meeting was "against the rules."

Alex's charm and boyish good looks won me over.

Later in the meeting, DCGA almost unanimously passed a resolution that would delete its own MyDenison page. As hilarious as that would've been, I took action to prevent DCGA's further descent into techno-fascism. The main point of the resolution was to start storing DCGA's documents with the University Archives. Even though we passed the resolution, the great history of DCGA will not stand the test of time for time is a cruel mistress. All is temporary and will fade to dust but time will march on. When they burned the Library of Alexandria, the crowd cheered in horrible joy. They understood that there was something older than wisdom, and it was fire, and something truer than words, and it was ashes.
