“DO YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS FOR US?”: WHAT TO ASK WHEN IT’S YOUR TURN

Job interviews! We’ve all had them, and we’ve all hated them. We’ve felt the anxiety, we’ve heard the pep talks. We’ve let our eyes dart between our hands in our laps and the exit sign on the wall as we sweat, noticeably, through our button-downs. Maybe we’ve even risked glances at our phones, or an analog clock if we can read those, to check how much time is left before we can finally leave. And each of our hearts have fluttered at what feels like the terminal lull in conversation—we’ve finished explaining what it means to be a leader and it seems, just for a moment, like the end has finally come.

But no. It hasn’t, and it won’t for several more minutes. Instead of dapping up and parting amicably, we must remain seated because the time has come for every interviewer’s favorite stumper: “Do you have any questions for us?”

However, this cute little curveball is no longer cause for panic. Compiled below are professional inquiries you can make that will surely dazzle your employer-to-be and win you the soul-sucking corporate job of your dreams:

- 1.) When’s your favorite time you were sick?
- 2.) When’s the last time you cried?
- 3.) Give me a rating out of ten. (looks)
- 4.) Who’s your favorite parent?
- 5.) Why do YOU think I’m struggling to swallow solid food?
- 6.) ?
- 7.) Can you tell when a person has never been to McDonald’s? Idk I just feel like I can.
- 8.) Hehe what number am I thinking of?
- 9.) Does the slow death of your marriage scare you? Bonus: will you purposely distort your children’s image of your spouse in the wake of divorce?
- 10.) Guess how many pill bottles are sitting on my desk rn.
- 11.) True or false? If you take a bunch of picklebacks and then chug a bottle of Kinky Pink Liqueur, the two cancel out.
- 12.) If I took a bunch of picklebacks and then chugged a bottle of Kinky Pink Liqueur last weekend—and they didn’t cancel out—how would that make you feel?
- 13.) Would you like one of the unwrapped candies I have in my pocket? Why or why not?

Finally: 14.) When do I start? (This shows that you’re confident and a go-getter. Do not skip.)

After running through this quick list of more than ten questions, all there’s left to do is wait for your new employer’s tearful acceptance (it will come via email, but you will know that it’s tearful because you definitely struck a chord). From there, go forth and succeed.

THE GOOD, THE BAD, THE STICKER: CARTER SEIPEL'S DEFINITIVE STICKER RANKINGS

Much like death, stickers are a part of life. Computers, water bottles, cars all improved by the colorful adhesives. Unfortunately there's been no award show for stickers... until now.

Top 5 Best Stickers

5. The big red D keyboard sticker.

We all got one around orientation, a sticker of the iconic Denison D perfectly sized for a keyboard. They're great! Who doesn't love poking a big red D?

4. Subtle pride flags.

At first it'll look like something boring (stack of books, a boat, etc.) but with a very specific color scheme. I won't notice for most of the semester but when I finally do I feel special. It's like I'm a secret agent or a member of a cult with secret symbols hidden in plain sight.

3. Anything about how you're addicted to coffee.

I'm a degenerate who's hooked on caffeine. During withdrawals from the bitter brown bean juice my hands will shake, I'll sleep through classes, and slap baristas so I light up seeing a quirky sticker with a saying like "Give me coffee or give me death!"

2. That one car with the Garfield and a The Mountain Goats bumper stickers.

Dope.

1. Any sticker that's shiny.

If I'm in class and your laptop has a shiny sticker I'm not getting any work done. Like a cat drawn to a laser pointer or a child with adhd drawn to a laser pointer it's all I can look at! A+

Top 5 Worst Stickers

5. The Bryant arts studio sticker.

Great design but it's everywhere, laptops, notebooks, railing, ceilings, etc. If I took economics seriously I'd say we have a surplus of these stickers

4. Star sign stickers.

Now, I've never seen one of these but I have a sinking feeling in my stomach they're out there. Such an aquarius move. Makes me sick.

3. A sticker representing your club/sport.

I'm jealous. When will the Bullsheet drop a sticker?

2. My other car is a tardis.

I've never seen a Star Trek but I've seen a billion of these cliche stickers. What's worse is this sticker was on a laptop!

1. The Denison parking pass sticker

Tacky. Played out. Dumb colors. Let's peel 'em all off!
