SOME OF MY DAD'S BEST JOKES

My father's always been quite the jokester, so I figured I'd share some of my favorite quips from his quirky sense of humor.

What did the zero say to the eight?
"Nice belt!"

A blonde walks into a building.
Ouch!

Does your face hurt?
'Cuz it's killing me!

Hi Hungry, I'm dad!

What did the ocean say to the beach?
Nothing, it just waved!

Ella, your mother and I are disappointed in you.

Why couldn't the bicycle stand up?
It was two tired.

How many tickles does it take to make an octopus laugh?
Ten tickles!

I can't wait for you to leave for school.

I'm on a seafood diet. I see food, and I eat it!

What does garlic do when it gets hot?
It takes its cloves off!

You should be more like your brother.

What did the fish say when it hit the wall?
"Dam!"

Disclaimer: This is just a silly little article, I love my father very much and (I think) he loves me too. This whole thing is a joke, so don't take it too seriously.

DINOSAUR POO

Dinosaurs feeding habits can be revealed by studying fossil dung called coprolites.

Unfortunately, to most cases, coprolites cannot tell those who ate them. However, in 1998 scientists discovered a coprolite weighing more than 1 kilogram from the late Jurassic period and found it contained...

The dung is packed with broken bits of dinosaur bones which appear to be a Sauropodomorph. The only Sauropodomorph known from North America in that particular area, which was long thought to have gone extinct, is a...

Can digestion
The most of today's Sauropodomorphs in this dung indicates that it fed on an exceptionally strong diet, avoiding the need to graze. It also reveals that the digestive system of...

It was long assumed that if a long-necked, slow-moving creature, which had long legs and a long neck, it should have a long, thin neck...
