BULLSHEET BESTIARY

Ellie Schrader,
Cryptozoologist

CLASSIFICATION: BITERS

“MISS BELLA”

Latin name: Domina Bella

Attributes: Extremely violent and territorial. Will always attack unprovoked. Small bow holds tremendous amounts of energy and power. Perpetually soggy chin fur from venomous secretion production. Bite force of 5,060 psi.

Description: The only of her kind to be recorded, Miss Bella is not to be engaged with, even from afar. So much as gazing in her direction will be considered an invitation to attack. She is a lonesome beast who seeks neither mate nor master, only vengeance, and has caused the deaths of many men.

“GUS”

Latin name: Turpis Gus

Attributes: Omits an odor that smells like a combination of Fritos and rotten meat.

Description: Perpetually disgusted with everything including itself, Gi (plural) hate to be looked at as much as you hate looking at them.

CLASSIFICATION: GUYS

“BIG CHOWDER”

Latin name: Chowder magnus

Attributes: Just likes to have fun once in awhile.

Description: Great at cracking jokes and relaxing.

“SMALL CHOWDER”

Latin name: Chowder minor

Attributes: Over thinks everything down to the most minute detail. Constant anxiety is only treatable with high levels of Prozac.

Description: Small Chowders' worries will never allow them to rest, making them excellent guards if domesticated.

CLASSIFICATION: ELVEN

“PIPPIN”

Latin name: Pippinum

Attributes: Will give it all up for the fighting crown. What resemble boxing gloves are in fact anatomically attached to the body.

Description: Pippins are fighters. They have no moral qualms when it comes to defeating their opponent in the ring. This combined with their pack mentality makes them especially frightful creatures to encounter. A lone Pippin is less likely to attack unprovoked, but in a pack will fight to defend their territory and honor.

“FRANCISCO JAMES”

Latin name: Francisco James

Attributes: Very cool and suave. Big brown eyes that make you want to cry.

Description: Little is known about the Francisco James aside from their incredibly stylish signature quaffs.

“BABY-BABY”

Latin name: Infantem infantem

Attributes: So small you could just eat them. Probably the cutest one of all the land. Whispers lots of secrets that may or may not be true.

Description: The Baby-Baby is an ultimately harmless but incredibly mischievous species, exemplified by the fact they were long regarded as mythological creatures until recent discovery (they were playing a very long game of hide-and-seek.)

“LONG JOHN SILVER”

Latin name: Ioannes longus Argenteus

Attributes: Extremely docile but elusive creatures. Easily domesticated but rare to encounter in the wild.

Description: Many regard the Long John Silver as a sort of woodland spirit. They are magnificent creatures who offer good fortune and protection to all who find them. Due to habitat loss and domestication, the wild Long John Silver is considered an endangered species protected under federal law.
