IT’S A HARD KNOCK WIFE

Carter Seipel,
Freshmen Writer

Alright let’s address the elephant in the room, my wife. When my critically acclaimed article “Tales From The Spring Break” (3/20/23) was published I got many questions such as “When did you get married?”. It pained me to see my journalistic integrity called into question, I felt sick at the thought of my own writings sullyng this paper’s fine reputation. Since I am going to be entrusted to continue delivering the hard hitting news for the next three years I should be 100% transparent...

Yes I am actually married.

It was the Summer of 2020. Our hands touched as we both reached for the last disposable minion mask. The world was ending, so I proposed as a goof. I guess the joke went right over her head because next thing I know I’m on a zoom with her, my soon to be in-laws, and a priest. I thought for sure I’d be witnessing the first virtual exorcism but no, the priest actually tricked me into saying “I do”. (He asked if anyone knew why the chicken crossed the road)

Now I consider myself an optimist, so I thought I’d make the best of a bad situation-ship and stick it out. I know I sound mean but you have to understand she was no Belle of the ball, although she sure put me through the (w)ringer. Let me tell you, I was devastated when lock down ended. My awfully wedded moved in, and I quickly found out she was here for a long time, not a good time. Consider my mellow harshed! In just a year the “old one” has...

Thrown out my lego displays, and replaced them with plants

Killed said plants with her icy glare

Taped over my DVR recording of The Devil Wears Prada

Figured out my phone’s password so she could make the lock screen a picture of her (the last thing you want to see)

Asked me “Where are we headed as a couple?” (We weren’t even in a car!)

Forced me to cut off my fishing buddies Matt, Mike, Matt B., Mickah, and my 3rd favorite Bullsheeteer, Will

Lost her $13 wedding ring (yikes)

On the brightside I would have never enrolled at Denison if I didn’t feel like a guest in my own home. I would never have filled up my time with so many exciting things if I didn’t have her dead eyes awaiting me back home. In fact if it weren’t for my wife I probably wouldn’t have become a writer for the bullsheet. I would never have spent a year spreading the joy of comedy. A joy I can no longer feel as it’s been sucked out of me by you know who. But positive outcomes aside, what I’m trying to get across is that my wife is a real pill.

SUCCESSION

Selah Griffin,
Sophomore Writer

After Season 4, Episode 3 of Succession, I have deemed that anything in this show is possible. And so - below is my list of predictions for the following ten episodes.

In Episode 4, Roman will buy a pet goldfish to cope with his following out with Gerri. Within hours of owning it, he will need to fly overseas and will put Greg in charge of said fish. Throughout the next six episodes; the fish will die repeatedly and Greg will keep having to replace the fish without Roman knowing just like a parent would with a child's pet.

Episode 5 will be the Logan Roy funeral. Tom will not wear black. He will wear pastels "To honor his life," rather than "To mourn his death."

In Episode 6, Willa will file for divorce. To buy back her love, Conner will schedule a private lunch for her and actor Rob Riggle (played by himself) in the hopes to further her career in the performing arts.

Shiv will finally have her threesome in Episode 7. But, not with Tom. With Willa and Rob Riggle.

Ain't no party like a Kendall Roy party 'cause a Kendall Roy party don't stop. 41 is the new 40. The heiress is in the castle. All of which will be the debated themes for Kendall's birthday party in Episode 8. Nothing screams "I'm in mourning!" like a life-sized ice sculpture of the man himself. This is also when we finally get his full cover of Billy Joel's "Honesty."

In Episode 9 we are left with the cliffhanger of Bridget finally opening her (ludicrously capacious) bag, but the screen goes blank right before we get to see what's inside.

Episode 10 will name Logan's permanent successor, obviously. But, it just ends up being some inside hire HR loser.
