BULLSHEET 2023: To Be Or To Be Something Else

---

Carter Seipel,
Sophomore Writer

It's official, the new hires are in. I'm no longer the only class of 26' on the Bullsheet. On one hand this is good (More staff=more funny). On the other hand I'm out of a gimmick. So I took a long look in the mirror (two hours) and asked "Who is Carter Sigh-pull?" Could I be...

The movie critic?
The Bullsheeteer who wears hats?
The unfunny one?
The insecure one? (this is a joke by the way, I hope you laughed)
The one who can pick a font?
The sober one?
The sickly one?
The riddle maker?
The shifty drifter sitting in the back of a nameless dive bar in the middle of nowhere?
The weather reporter man?
The one with the wife?
The one who goes into politics after failing to be a comedian?
The one with glasses (frames, no lenses)?
The writer who cuts his ear off?
The one who forgets to wear his retainer (a lot)?
The one (1) who uses too many parentheses (Ex: "(“ and “) )?
The cowboy?

All of these are great options if you ask me! Each one is more essential to a daily comedy newspaper than the last. I don't know who to be, and I certainly can't decide for myself! So call in and let me know what identity I should lean way too hard into!

Why I Love The Freshman Year Meal Plan

Abby Webster,

The freshman year meal plan brings me so much joy. I love opening my GET app and seeing that I have zero flex dollars. Zero!! It's so great. And it's only like what? Week six of my time here so far? I do miss out on food and drinks from Slayter but that's ok! Who needs boba when you're depressed when there's the emotional support apple juice from either dining hall? One of the reasons freshmen were given less flex dollars and more meal swipes was because we are supposed to make friends in the dining hall. And you can argue that we as freshmen are supposed to sit at a table with random people and a friendship will blossom. Let me tell you that has been very true for me. I have made such a strong friendship with myself. It has been great. I have even ghosted my therapist! I do eat with my friends. That is when our schedules actually line up and we can eat with each other. The dining hall food isn't that bad anyway. I had a cucumber from Curtis that tasted like dish soap. It was delicious. I love the taste of dawn platinum dish soap. And the plates and cutlery are so clean and pristine. One time when I was in Huffman hall I was getting a fork and I walked back to my table only to notice then that one of the prongs on my fork was bent all out of whack. And on that same day, the other fork I got had a massive stain on it. Which is amazing because it gave me an excuse to walk to the place where you drop off dishes twice!! Any of the fried food that is served is so good! I love that my french fries smell and taste like fish. A kind of food I strongly dislike and actively avoid. It just opens my horizon so much to what other kinds of foods are out there. Like the dawn platinum dish soap flavored vegetables. I never realized the color blue could taste so good. If this article doesn't convince you that the freshman meal plan is not the best meal plan then you are simply a bafoon. And not simply a *****. Have a nice day you *****.

Songs I Wished the Bell Ringers Covered

JewishBangs,
Submission

**Below is a collection of tunes I hope the bell ringers consider in their future repertoire. This is not to bash their work, (I love the Harry Potter theme song), but I think they could update their music to fit the current taste of college students. While this list is open to suggestions, it's already gotten the greenlight from Pitchfork and Randy Jackson sooo I'm inclined to believe its perfect.**

Party in the U.S.A. (more like party in Granville!!!)

Poker Face (that intro with THOSE bells was just meant to be)

Kill Bill - SZA (genuinely think this would slap)

I'm Just Ken - (topical, politically relevant, fierce)

No Hands - Waka Flocka Flame (speaks for itself)

The National Anthem as covered by Fergie (I hope the bell ringers can convey the nuances and complexities Ms. Stacy Ann brings to the table)

Any Irish Sea Shanty (ideally accompanied by the Hilltoppers)

Firework (because every set needs a tear jerker, also fierce)

Seven Nation Army (imagine how epic your 8:30 classes would be if that was blasting Chapel Walk at promptly 8:20)

Everybody Talks (The Glee Cast version because statistically speaking 58 % of Denison students are Gleeeks)

Hotline Bling

Drunk in Love (preferably played at 4:20 am on a Saturday, which is a new bell ringing time I'm gonna pitch right here right now)

Put Your Records On (tearjerker but in a happy way)

Dynamite by Tao Cruz (a piece of music that will be remembered as equivalent to Beethoven's symphonies in brilliance)

Just Wanna Rock (would be hard to pull off but if done correctly could be the best thing since the invention of the microwave oven)

If you know a bell ringer, show this to them ASAP so our campus can become the hottest spot this side of the Appalachian mountains!

I HAVE THIS AWKWARD AMOUNT OF SPACE TO FILL
