4 Signs Your Roommate is a Zombie

Carter Seipel,
Feeling Spooky

I got a lot of complaints after publishing “4 signs your roommate is a vampire” last year (10/27/22). Many people came up to me with tears in their eyes shouting “Carter! Carter! What do I do if my roommates are another kind of undead? How will I know?!” Most of those people have been locked deep inside of the Hoaglin wellness center for treatment, but when they get out I have just the guide for them! Four signs your roommate is a zombie:

1. They have a lot of friends

I can count on a single hand how many times I’ve seen a zombie chilling by itself. Zombies travel in hoards. Everyone and their grandmothers know that! So next time you see your roommate with a group of people you better watch your neck.

2. They walk with a limp

What’s the deal with every zombie walking with a limp? Ableist propaganda if you ask me. I firmly believe that people with limps are not undead and are in fact very cool. All that being said, if your varsity athlete of a roommate occasionally walks around with a leg impairment there’s only one rational explanation... the flesh from their foot is rotting away! It has to be that!

3. They like pumpkin spice

Did you know pumpkin spice is a basic thing to like? This is actually the first piece of media to make this rather comedic observation. Yay us! Anyways if you see them drinking pumpkin spice they must be a mindless zombie that has no personality. Unless they drink it all year round, that’s cool and subversive just like making fun of pumpkin spice.

4. They aren’t vegan

Have you ever seen a vegan zombie? I thought not. Checkmate.

Now all of these points could be explained away by saying that your roommate is a sociable omnivorous athlete who enjoys the occasional pumpkin spice latte BUT that’s what they (big zombie media) wants you to think. Lucky for you I just exposed the truth. You’re welcome.

Advice For Halloween Weekend

Mick,
Worried About Y’all

I’ve been on campus for a few Halloween Weekends. Here is some advice for the younger students. Treat this as a guide for your nightly adventures this weekend.

WEAR A FUCKING JACKET.

I know I’m going to see some of y’all out there freezing your asses off. It’s alright, just wear the jacket. I know that the Lorax, Luke Skywalker, and Harley Quinn don’t wear puffer jackets, but this weekend they do.

DON’T DRINK THE HALLOWEEN THEMED JUICE YOUR FRIEND MADE.

I know your roommate is excited about their juice they named “The Blood-Sucker”. But, this is the quickest way to spend your night yaking and never looking at red kool-aid the same ever again.

WEAR A COSTUME.

If you think you are too cool to wear a costume, you’re not.

LISTEN TO THE MONSTER MASH.

The Fraternity parties will play the first few seconds of this song and then get nervous and then change it back to “Party in the USA”.

DON’T THROW UP AT THE MOONIES.

If you go to the Moonies and throw up, you’ve lost twice.

To Help You Feel Better

Abby Webster,
Submission

Hi all. A lot of scary and awful things have been happening recently and it has impacted all of us. And due to the fact that I want to make a career out of making art that makes people feel better and happy I thought I would share some photos of my dog Charlie (Aka Big Boy).

This is him we he was about a month and a half old.

This phot is from last summer. He is 4 years old now.

A year ago he got an infection so had to wear the donut.

He is in Northern MI
