This past Friday Doobie Radio hosted their first ever Battle of the Bands at Lamson Lodge. With 8 different people and bands performing, the Lodge was packed with fans eager to hear some live music. The voting process was simple: each dollar donated for a band was one vote, and the band with the most votes won all of the money for the charity of their choice. By the end of the night over $500 was raised, and with the Doobie matching that $500 over $1000 will go to the charity of the winning band. In a shocking twist of events, despite not being part of the event at all, Kashmir, the nations #1 Led Zepplin tribute band won, raising over $1000 dollars for their charity, Helping Hands: Monkey Helpers. The charity was founded to raise and train Capuchin monkeys to provide daily in-home assistance to people living with mobility impairments. Doobie exec board is puzzled as to how Kashmir, the Live Led Zepplin Show pulled the feat off, but all donations were verified. “I have no idea how this happened,” said Mick Smith, a member of the executive board who helped to organized the event. We reached out to Kashmir for comment but have not heard back.
