GRIFFIN'S GUIDE BACK TO CAMPUS

Griffin Conley,
Fingering the Pulse

Welcome to Spring Semester! A time when the campus typically feels a little junior-less and students are warned about falling ice between Higley & Talbot. As people both new and seasoned return to our fair Hill, I wanted to give some advice on how to maximize your January restart.

New Clothing

Six weeks is plenty of time to pick up new wardrobe. It only makes sense that you want to break out your new pieces and show them around. But you need to remember, everyone has a new schedule. You will not know who you will see on a given day for the first week. Plenty of people swap or drop. So, rely on last semester's clothing for at least a week. This way you get to know who you will see and when. You can't waste a good outfit on a mid class section!!

Tans

Whether you got yours at 0 feet above sea level on a beach or 6506 feet above sea level on the slopes (jealous). And I am sure you'd love to paint the campus green with envy. To maximize your tan, ditch the thermals and sweaters for some good ole fashioned short sleeves! Hell, even go sleeveless with a tank top. And don't be too conservative with necklines, A low cut top or a button up only half buttoned are more than appropriate when you gave the vitamin D glow.

Practicing Accents and Mannerisms from Abroad

Whether you spent a whole week or a semester abroad, I am sure you'll come back with a new twinge. And do not be ashamed of picking up some new lingo. It doesn't matter if you're from Winnetka, if you learned some fun phrases on the playa, put them to use. Or if you studied abroad and can't finish a meal without smoking, open a Huffman window! You're worldly now!

Trauma Dumping

Look we all get it. Spending time with family after being this cool and interesting college student is hard. Your parents probably do not understand your final paper for ANSO 345 Archaeology & Skeletons or want to see your financial modelings from ECON 423 International Trade Economics. But guess what, WE ALL FEEL THE SAME WAY!!! You're not special because you felt some new disconnect that wasn't previously there with your family. This current relationship is something all LAC students feel. Childhood is over, goodbye Annie, hello Daddy Warbucks!

TO MY FELLOW SENIORS

Claire Anderson,
Senior, Among Other Things

We finally made it to our final semester on the Hill. Crazy! I've been spending a lot of time looking back on the past seven semesters and reminiscing on how far we have come, and, not to be scary, but we have 17 weekends left before we graduate.

MAKE. THEM. COUNT.

Check off everything on your bucket list, go out even if its cold, get the best grades of your life, write that cover letter at the bar, use those Big Red Bucks, hang out with everyone you know, submit to the Bullsheet. Do everything. No one wants to graduate with regrets.

SPRING 2024 PACKING LIST

Robert Adams,
Student Submission

It can be tough to definitively figure out exactly what you're going to need in order to live on your own for the first time. I know it was for me! However, with a semester of experience and regret behind me, here's my updated packing list for the spring!

A large egg
Not for consumption

Incubator
This is a good idea

Heating lamp pointed at the incubator
My roommate will surely approve of this

Large cage
Res-com will surely approve of this

Dragon-sized saddle
I just think it looks cool

Live rats
Not for much longer

Tourniquet
OW OW SHIT OW OW OW OW
