"GRANVILLE'S MOST PRETENTIOUS DAILY PUBLICATION"

Vol. XLIV, No. 106

BOB DYLAN'S FIRST 8 ALBUMS RANKED FROM WORST TO BEST

Mick,
Head Writer

8. Bob Dylan Self-Title

Good albums but it is by far the least interesting.

7. John Wesley Harding

This one is good but just because All Along the Watchtower.

6. Another Side Of Bob Dylan

A lot of goofy songs.

5. Blonde on Blonde

Not as good as everyone thinks it is, but it is still killer.

4. Highway 61 Revisited

Has the "best single of all time" on it, so I'll give it the 4th spot.

3. The Times They Are A-Changin'

Protest Songs. Great Album.

2. Bringing It All Back Home

Dylan goes electric.

1. The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan

Best of everything.

DON'T SEE BOB DYLAN LIVE: A PERSONAL REFLECTION

Mick Smith,
Head Writer
(Whatever that means)

I saw Bob Dylan live in 2020 at a music festival. The music festival was made up of only classic rock bands. Bob Dylan was the first performance of the weekend. I was so excited to see him perform, as was everyone else. I was a freshman in high school at the time and my music taste wasn't super strong at the time, but I did know a lot of classic rock. I knew many Bob Dylan songs and I thought of him as one of the greats. Bob Dylan came out on stage and punished the audience for being Bob Dylan fans. He didn't look or talk to the audience and played only deep cuts for around two hours. The deep cuts that I did know I couldn't even sing along to because he practically changed the entire song. Some might say that this is Dylan's way of keeping his music personal. I say it is him being a pretentious asshole. I love his music, but wow was that a painful concert. It was like seeing a college cover band version of Bob Dylan. Everything was off a little bit. At the end of the show he played "Like a Rolling Stone" but it was all fucked up like the rest of his songs. People tried to sing along but it didn't work. The people standing in front of me were crushed. This one old man was talking about how he had been trying to see Dylan his whole life and finally got to do it.....and then it was awful. He walked off stage and everyone kinda clapped. I have never been to a concert like that. Everyone was so excited and then so extremely disappointed. No one was angry just really sad. So, if you like Bob Dylan, don't go see him live. He will only punish you for making him super rich.
