"GRANVILLE'S MOST FASHIONABLE DAILY PUBLICATION"

Vol. XLIV, No. 107

T-SHIRTS FOR SALE

Leah Jackson,
Member of the Bull-Shirt

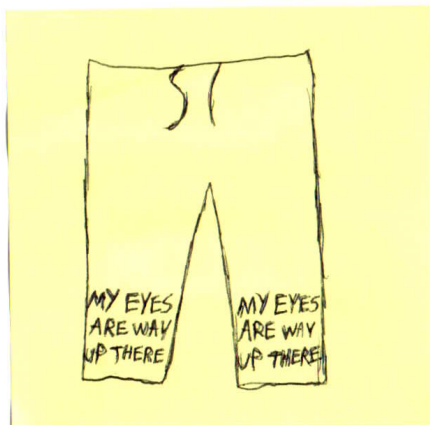

Midterm approaches in several fornites and my cup hath runneth dry. (It's almost midterms and I'm already running out of money so I will be launching my very own line of t-shirts. Let me know if you want one. Also I'm now realizing I don't know what a fortnite is. Is it spelled fortnight or is that the game?)

PANTS FOR SALE!!!

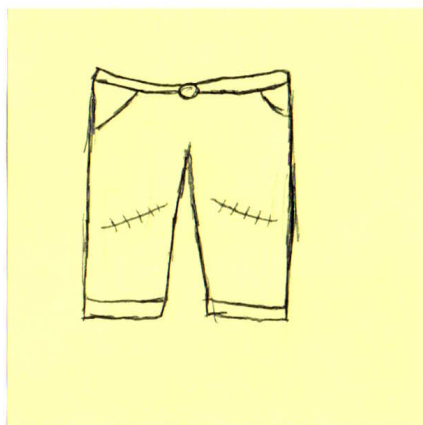

Carter Seipel,
Fad-chaser

With the fun shirt market thoroughly tapped into, one can't help but assume that the market for fun pants will follow. That's where I come in. Just look at these sketches!

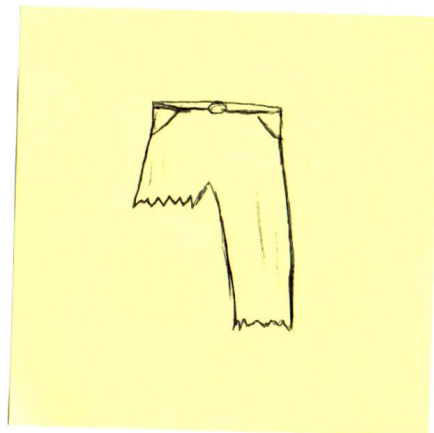

SWEAT PANTS WITH ANKLE PRINTING

Yeah that seems like a good spot for text.

SEWN RIPPED JEANS

They're just jeans!

HYBRID JORT-JANTS

50% jeans. 50% jorts.
Double the price.

THE MENACE AMONG US PLAGUING OUR CAMPUS

Carter Seipel,
BS in Global Health and
Bio chemistry

Whether it's on the toilet or in front of a sink I spend a lot of time in bathrooms. Because of this, I can say with authority that there is a staggering number of people not washing their hands. Last night as I was brushing my teeth, not one but two people elected to use and then leave the restroom without even glancing towards the sink. Two in the almost two minutes I spend brushing my teeth! I witnessed two more people follow this icky pattern today alone.

Despite the comical nature of this daily publication I must emphasize this is no laughing matter. I have no words. All I can say is that I'm appalled. Now I'm not asking everyone to wash their hands for two whole happy birthdays (I mean who has that much time these days), but you could at least give your hands a half-hearted rinse. If you refuse to do it for yourself, do it for your fellow (wo)man. Professors and students alike are dropping like flu filled flies and we must honor their memory. How can you honor their memory? By doing the bare minimum and start washing your disgustingly sticky germ-riddled hands.
