HOPES AND DREAMS FOR SPRING BREAK 2024

Caroline Concannon,
Junior Editor

The time is upon us! Spring break is finally here and I couldn't be more excited. There are so many things to look forward to: memories to be made with loved ones, reflecting on the highlights of the semester, remembering the low points of the semester, anticipating its' end, spiraling, binge drinking, apologizing, and remembering that thankfully people exist outside of this campus. A long road trip filled with optimism and sing-alongs to "American Pie" will eventually mirror one filled with silence and regret. LETS FUCKING GOOOOOOOOO!!!!!!

Though none of us have control over how perfect our weeks will be, I think its important for everyone to set realistically achievable goals for what they want out of break. I've given a lot of thought to mine and hope that displaying examples of my aspirations might guide some of your own.

Buying the Jelly Belly factory! (I thought this was in Wisconsin. Nope, it has no relevance to my break plans at all.)

Celebrating St. Patrick's Day as my father, Patrick. I will transform into him to fulfill my greatest wish of being a Patrick on St. Patrick's Day.

Stealing my best friend Carly's dad's boat (I'm going home) and taking it to Miami for the only valid spring break experience. Thats right Lou...keep looking the other way.

Marrying Joe Keery! A true dream come true. (I'm going to Chicago.)

Graduating!

Achieving world domination.

10 THINGS I DO AS A COLLEGE SENIOR TO COPE WITH MY IMPENDING GRADUATION

Lauren Ehlers,
Senior Writer

- 1.) Get worried that I’m not feeling enough feelings about my impending graduation.
- 2. ) Comfort-watch Middleditch & Schwartz on Netflix for the fifth time.
- 3.) Happily visualize my future!
- 4.) Romanticize Slayter power bowls to the point that I consider becoming a fifth year in order to keep eating them.
- 5.) Eat a power bowl that doesn’t really hit and think, “Never mind.”
- 6.) Struggle to complete schoolwork while also developing a sudden interest in the GPA I’m going to finish with. Uh oh!
- 7.) Sleep either too much or too little every night. There is never an in-between, and there is never a sense of restedness.
- 8.) Wonder...
- 9.) Contemplate...
- 10.) Savor...

CHAMPAGNE, SHACKLES, AND SAILING

Griffin Conley,
Admiral

Club Sailing’s is happy to announce we will be hosting our 13th annual Champagne, Shackles, and Sailing event next week!

In order to maintain our good fortune, we will kick off practice with a fleet launch. Please do not fret about bringing your own champers. We will have a few bottles of Buckeye Winery’s Liebfraumilch. Please note, the fizz is not for drinking. This goes without saying about Ohio wine, but it will just be for the bow’s of boats.

We will then go over basic nautical knowledge. Club Sailing will cover how to use shackles, ring dings, and clevis pins. Then we go over knots. Expect to start off with figure eight before working our way up to squares, bowlines, and hitches. Unfortunately, after an event in the fall, carrick bends will no longer be taught.

And then the main event, sailing! Our team is proud of our fleet of FJs. These two person boats are the optimal environment for landlubbers to get their first dinghy experience or for sea dogs to get back on the open sea (Hoover Reservoir in Westerville).

Please dress appropriately for practice. Depending on the day, clothing should fall somewhere on the spectrum of speedo to wet suit. We recommend a towel and coordinating track suit or sweatsuit. Wearer's preference. Note, if you wear stripes, they should be NAVY WITH WHITE not white with navy.

RSVP on What to DU for more information.
