I JUST SAW A MUSICAL AND HERE ARE THINGS THAT I WROTE DOWN Caroline Concannon, Hypocrite

When my friend Talia and I found out that Otterbein was doing a production of the Dolly Parton musical 9 to 5, we couldn't help ourselves from the deep need to see the performance. I find musical theatre as a concept to be hilarious, and I hope you do too. Nothing was going to stop us from enjoying this wonderfully weird show. I went online to buy tickets and discovered that they were $30...that would most definitely stop us from going. I called the box office to learn that there were $15 student rush tickets. That we could accept. So tonight we drove to Westerville to experience what I can only describe as a night to remember. Upon pulling into the parking lot, who did we stumble upon but Denison's own Music Theatre Professor Brad Frenette and She Loves Me choreographer Kelly Black. This was the best omen we could have possibly received. We were in for a treat. I had known that I wanted to report on the show for the sheet but my dumbass forgot to bring a pencil and paper. In a crazy turn of events, the box office kindly gave me their Otterbein Theatre Department 2016-2017 Season pad of paper and a pencil, which I will now treasure forever. Without them, today's sheet would not have been possible. Below are my thoughts as I was watching the show. Please note that for the most part these were written in the dark. Thankfully the student rush tickets sat us close to the stage. While lighting helped, there's still a good amount that are completely illegible. If you are able to make sense of any of them, please let me know. You know where to find me.
