"GRANVILLE'S MOST LOVED PUBLICATION!"

Vol. XLIV, No. 121

THE OFFICE BURNED DOWN.

Caroline Concannon,
Arsonist

Things keep getting worse for The Bullsheet. Not only are we completely bankrupt, but I'm devastated to report that our office burned down.

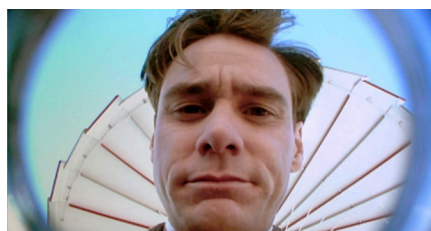

In my dream. Let me tell you the tale...

Mick and I were in the office editing with our friend Charlotte when I went to plug in the beautiful fairy lights that hang above our beloved jouch. BOOM! An explosion! A flame rose out of the outlet, pouring onto an old sheet that was lying on the ground. I want to be clear that the flame was not big at all when I initially saw it. But we instantly were distracted by our commitment to the bit that we were doing and did not care about the fire. This says everything that you need to know about the three of us, and you're absolutely right to be concerned.

After we were done laughing at ourselves, the flame had gotten a lot bigger. Panic set in and I ran to pull the Knapp fire alarm and nothing happened. While this was an outlandish dream, I think that some moments felt a little bit too real and the fire alarm stands firmly at the top of the list. We fled the office and frantically started yelling to warn people. All of a sudden, out of the glass doors to Knapp, one of those Hollywood celebrity watch tour buses pulled up. Definitely not a common occurrence on A-quad but I seemingly didn't think twice about it. Someone called the fire department (big ups to GFD) and campo (our proud partners in fighting Denison crime), who both magically materialized in an instant.

What we then witnessed was something we never could have expected. Thirty firemen jumped out of the fire truck and dragged out the hose to extinguish the fire (I don't know why none of us had thought of using just a fire extinguisher but at the same time know exactly why). They all lined up and the people on the tour bus silently pulled out their cameras and began to film. The water started rushing and before we knew it, the pressure from the water hit Knapp and KNOCKED DOWN ALL OF THE OFFICE'S WALLS TO REVEAL THAT IT WAS A SET THE WHOLE TIME. WE'VE BEEN LIVING IN THE TRUMAN SHOW.

The tour bus cheered, the fire department laughed, and the three of us stood there in shock. They had all somehow anticipated our downfall. How long had this been going on? What had the world seen from within our sacred, asbestos filled walls? When would we have found out if three dumb burpees hadn't entered the office? If any office had to be burned down, why couldn't it have been The Denisonian? These questions have haunted me ever since. Maybe this wasn't a dream as much as it was an omen...guys, come clean. The bit is up. Let us know if you're that obsessed with us. We can't ever be completely sure but as a result of this, Griffin and I have made sure to Truman proof and fireproof the office. The gasoline tank has been temporarily removed.

MULCH DOG RANKING

Ryan Becherer,
Resident Mulch Dog Aficianado

Editor's Note: Ryan introduced me to the world of mulch dogs this weekend and its safe to say that I'm never going back. All you need to know is that they're dogs who look like they eat mulch and they're huge in Japan. They have fans. They have opps. They collab. They're what the Internet was designed for. Enjoy his ranking.

10. FREAK!

9. THIS MF CAN'T TAKE SHIT SERIOUSLY!!!

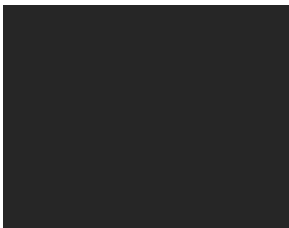

8. GREEDY!!!

7. Suspicious!

6. I can't get the picture but he's weird.

5. Morally ambiguous but iconic.

4. Don't know much about this guy but he seems chill.

3.

2. Veeeeeery handsome! :)

1. THE GOAT!!!
