

THE BULLSHEET

bullsheet@denison.edu | @dubullsheet | denisonbullsheet.com

The Bullsheel, a forum for news, humor, and community dialogue, is funded by DCGA, recycles, and is printed each day that classes are in session. Submissions must be sent before our editors shamble into the office for next day publication via email to: bullsheet@denison.edu. Submissions herein solely reflect the opinions of the authors.

Edited last night by:
Caroline Concannon
Delivered this morning by:
BILL!

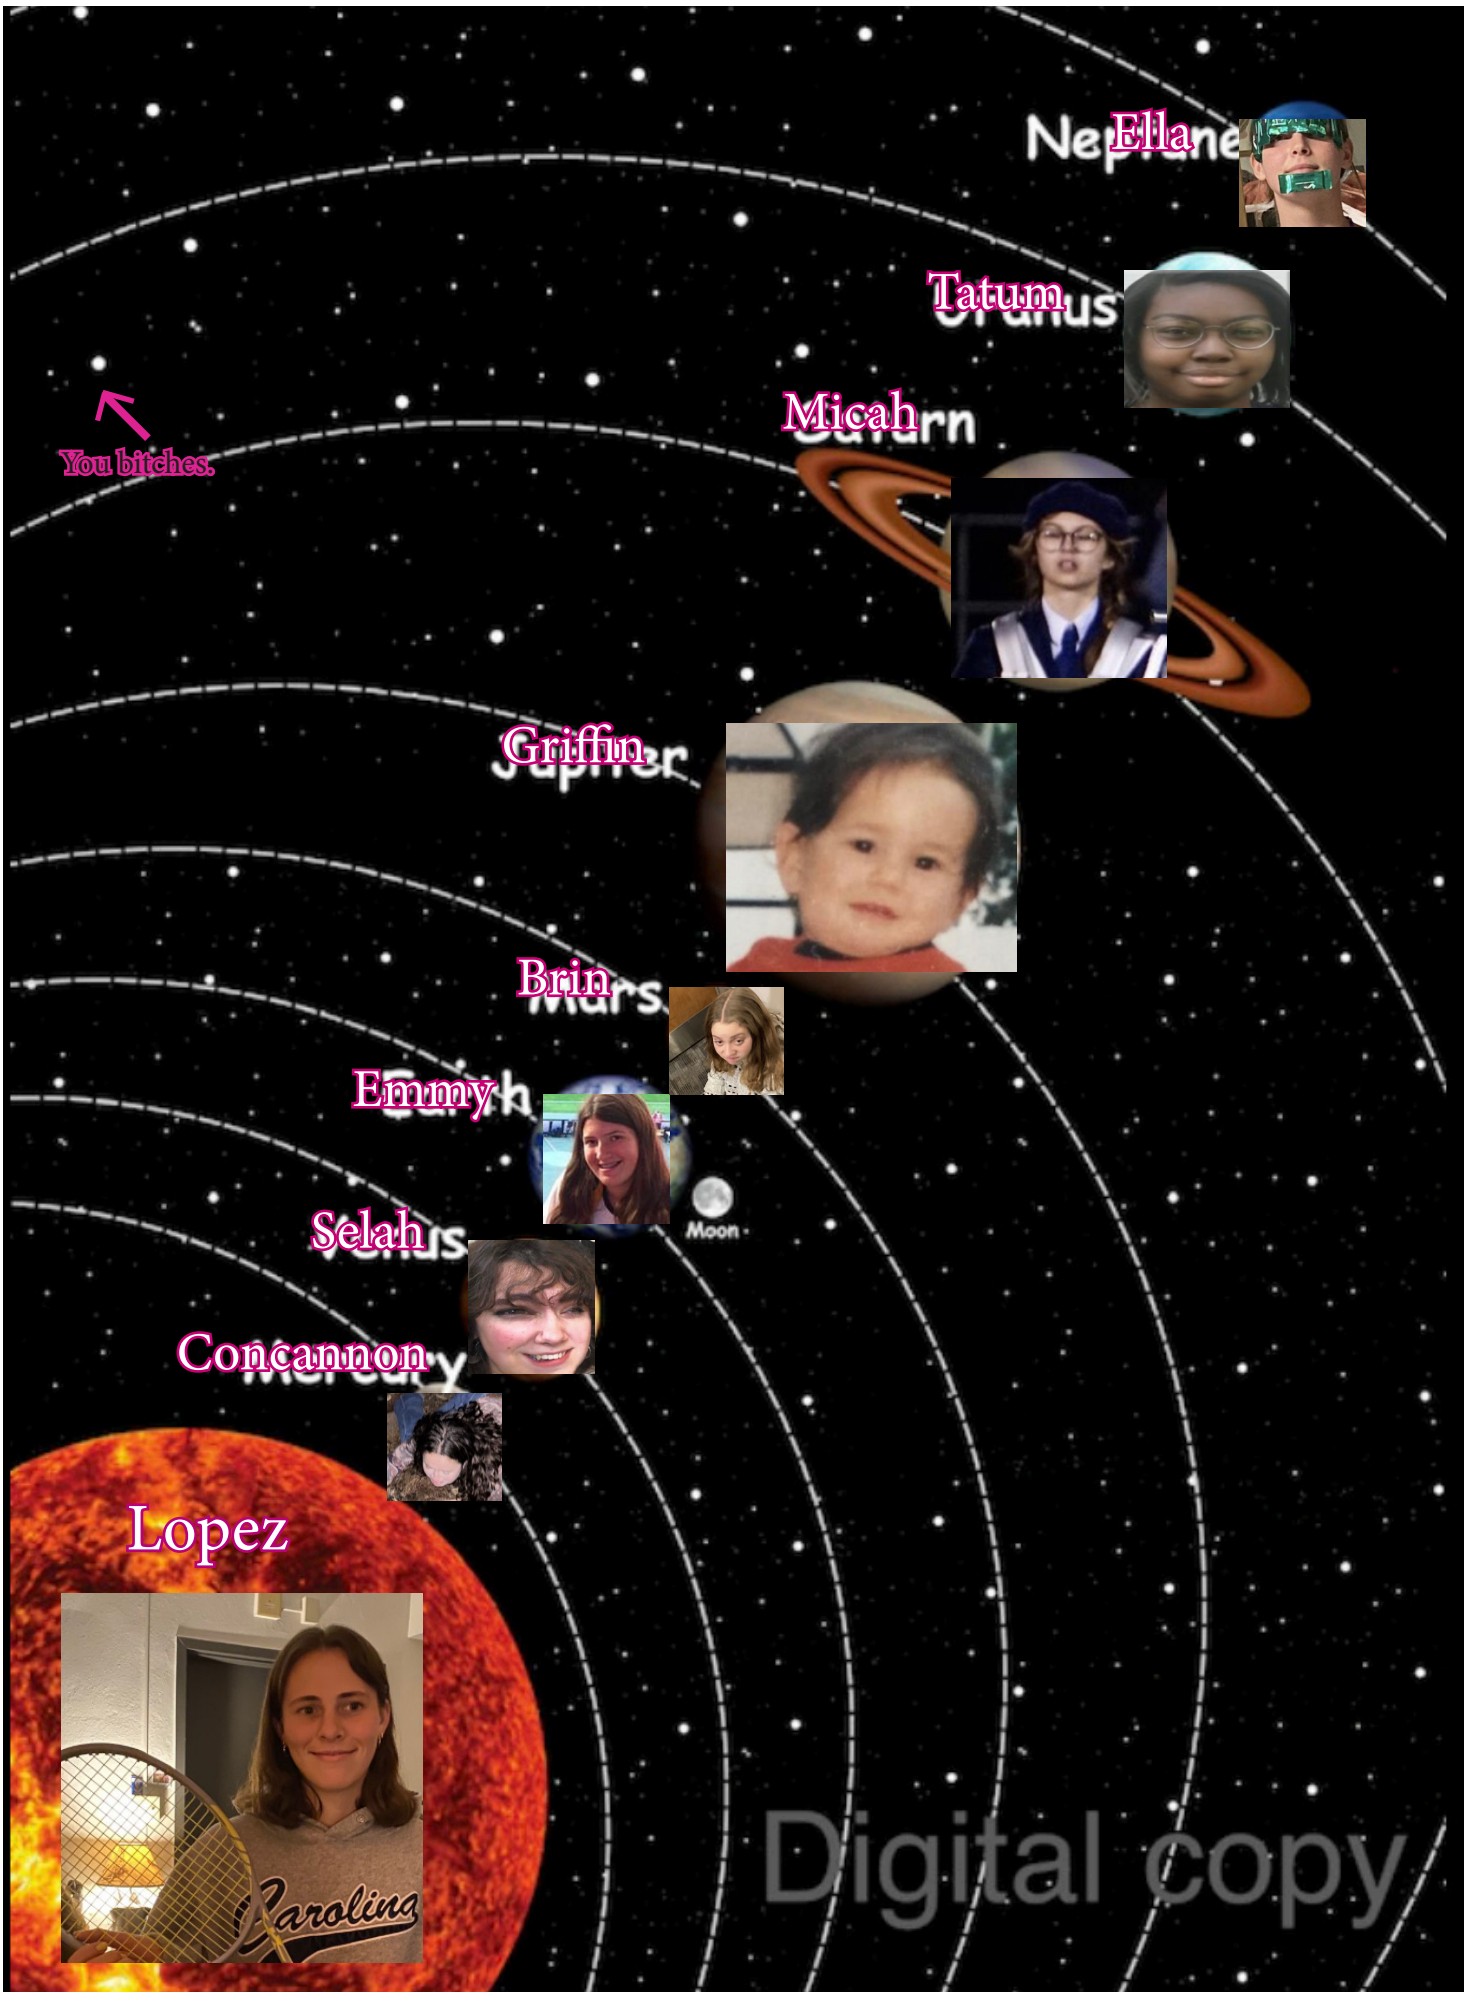

April 29th, 2025

GRANVILLE'S ROCKINGEST PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 127

GOOD LUCK! YOU BITCHES REVOLVED AROUND US. NOW WHAT?

Caroline Concannon,
Peace Out and Rock On

Hey Denison! Friendly reminder that anyone can submit to us at anytime! I think that campus has changed a ton in my four years and it's going to change even more rapidly in the upcoming ones. Don't forget that The Bullsheet is first a community forum. You should communicate your ideas, funny or not, to the campus when you feel like it. We don't make edits without consulting you, so let us help you make your voice heard. YikYak is for cowards. Let's start being normal and either talk to people in person or put our words on paper next to a cartoon bull. MWAH!

ADDRESSING THE ALLEGATIONS

Eleanor Mason,
Sophomore Writer

Hey folks! I just wanted to reach out about a few rumors you might have heard recently regarding me and my alleged recent assimilation by the colony of ants that inhabits my dorm room. While it might have been funny at first, this narrative is beginning to seriously impact my quality of life here at Denison, and so I am here today to definitively put it to rest. I am ABSOLUTE-LY NOT presently being controlled by millions of ants that have infested my brain. To clear up any confusion, I have compiled below a list of each facet of the rumor that you may have heard in order to help you separate fact from fiction.

TRUE: My dorm room is absolutely chock full of ants. I live in a basement, a fact that, combined with my slovenly nature, makes my space a perfect place for ants to inhabit, especially as the weather gets warmer.

TRUE: The ants did attempt to enter my brain one night a couple of weeks ago. As anyone who has ever had an ant infestation knows, they will occasionally try to establish a nest in your cerebral tissues. This is very standard ant behavior, and something that everyone should be prepared for.

FALSE: They were successful in establishing their nest. Though I remember little from that night other than the drumming of thousands upon thousands of tiny ant legs against the inside of my skull, I was assured by the tiny voice (or, rather, many tiny voices) in my head the next morning that everything was fine. As such, I am very certain that they must have failed to gain control. Though some people have reported seeing ants moving in and out of my eye sockets as of late, these are isolated incidents and do not indicate anything of greater significance.

FALSE: Recent behavioral changes are a result of the ants' mind control. As they failed to establish their colony, this cannot possibly be the case. Eating miniscule pieces of fruit, carrying things many times my body weight, and spitting formic acid at people who annoy me are all perfectly normal hobbies that I have recently taken up and should not be worried about.

TRUE: We should get rid of all the ant traps on campus. Ant traps are horrible and inhumane. Let's all pick one up and carry them to the dumpster in a single file line. That should take care of it.

Staff "Claw, PBR, or Simply?" Box
Caroline "PBR" Lopez, Managing Editor
Selah "PBR" Griffin, Senior Editor
Emmy "Cran Simply" Ayad, Senior Editor
Brin "PBR" Glass, Senior Editor
<hr/>
Caroline "pooped my pants" Concannon, Head Writer
Ella "Claw" Buzas Senior Writer
Griffin "Slut" Conley, Senior Writer
Micah "Cider" DeLorenzo, Senior Writer
Tatum "Anything" Thomas, Senior Writer
Carter "Coming Home" Seipel, Foreign Correspondent
Arianna "PBR" Griffiths, Junior Writer
Elliot "PBR" Harpham, Foreign Correspondent
Leah "PBR" Jackson, Foreign Correspondent
Christine "PBR" Trueh, Foreign Correspondent
Lucy "Claw" Dale, Sophomore Writer
Eleanor "Claw" Mason, Sophomore Writer
William "Coffee" Eddleman, Freshman Writer
Lindsey "Claw" George, Freshman Writer
Lucy "Claw" Hollingsworth-Hays, Freshman Writer
Hayley "CLAWS OUT" Shay, Freshman Writer

