GRANVILLE'S LEGAL PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 128

NEW LEGAL TENDER JUST DROPPED

This whole “Big Red Buck” nonsense simply won’t do. It’s about time we took matters into our hands. Starting today, April 30th, you can use these, “Bull Bucks” at any participating location in downtown Granville. We had a couple 20k leftover from the DCGA budget allocations, we just got soooo much for next year. So we’re using this opportunity to give back. Happy spending :)

CHRISTINE’S BELI

Christine Trueh, beli

As the semester is coming to a close, I’ve had the privilege to travel to nine different countries, and I have decided to give you some of my Beli favorites, so whenever you happen to be in the area, you can let them know Christine sent you!

Naples, Italy: Before my week in Naples studying garden designs, I could wholeheartedly claim that Italian was my favorite kind of food. After one week, my stomach was in shambles and I was craving ANYTHING that didn’t include carb, cheese, and tomatoes. One highlight of my food experience in Naples was the drinks. If you are ever in Naples, you have to get a Maradona. Even though I dislike Napoli’s football club, this cocktail is good, but if you drink too much you’ll go blind. Long live Maradonna! For food, my favorite restaurant would be Antonio & Antonio!

Overall ranking: 7.4 out of 10

Prague, Czechia: If I could go back in time before leaving, I would have told myself to eat more Mexican food. The closest thing to a taco in Europe are French tacos which I consider to be a disgrace. Thankfully, while I was in Prague, my lovely AirBnB host recommended a delicious Mexican restaurant: Alebrijies, Cocina Mexicana.

Overall ranking: 9.7 out of 10

Vienna, Austria: When it comes to Schnitzel, the only reference I had to the dish was the character from Chowder. Figlmüller Restaurant Bäckerstraße ranked second on my list for restaurants and honestly I’m not surprised. This place is famous for its schnitzel and the hype is deserved. Don’t ask for any sauces with the schnitzel, only mayo. Apparently ketchup is considered barbaric.

Overall ranking: 9.9 out of 10

Honorable Mentions:

France: Roger La Grenouille - If you’re ever in the mood for frog legs and escargot (not bad).

England: Nandos - Just a classic, innit.

CRACKED THE CODE!

GRIFFIN
will never read this

At a very productive meeting with The Bullsheet staff, we finally understood the Make America Healthy Again movement. Our crack team of writers were noticing a disturbing trend: milk percentages. Somehow the only redeemer in the world of dairy options, whole milk, is not 100% milk fat!

Whole milk is only about 3% milk fat. The Bullsheet hypothesizes that Secretary of Health and Human Services Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has a sharp enough palate and realizes that whole milk is just 1% more than 2% milk. Now the vocal support for raw milk just makes sense. He is in search of milk with 100% milk fats. It is the only logical explanation for why any argument for pasteurization fails with the supposed MAHA experts. Or why RFK Jr. is overseeing the end of milk quality testing while cases of bird flu surge with dairy cattle.
