

THE BULLSHEET

The Bullsheet, a forum for news, humor, and community dialogue, is funded by DCGA, recycles, and is printed each day that classes are in session. Submissions must be sent before our editors shamble into the office for next day publication via email to: bullsheet@denison.edu. Submissions herein solely reflect the opinions of the authors.

Edited last night by:

Lucy Dale

Delivered this morning by:

Eleanor Mason

September 12th, 2025

GRANVILLE'S "MOST NOSTALGIC" PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 11

MEET THE STAR OF MY NIGHTMARES: DACHSHUNDS

Lucy Dale,
Loosing Sleep

Hey You! Yes, You! I know you read the title of this and in your pretty little head you pronounced dachshound like [dash-hound] and for that I would like to tell you that you are not alone. This week I started my Monday as I start everyday: absolutely dreading the day ahead and a cold Celsius.

Then, my mind was literally assaulted when I learned that the dog breed dachshound is pronounced like [doxin]. Now, this is illegal for several reasons, first being that I thought these were two different dog breeds. Could I have described what either looked like? No. But that's really none of my business.

However, I unfortunately googled dachshound to get to the bottom of this case and let's be real, I work for the Bullsheet, I did not know how to spell dachshound, so google had to translate my spelling: dashhound. Luckily, google was on top of it, or I guess Bill Gates was on top of it, was he the google guy? Not sure.

Anyway, what I found was even more upsetting. A dachshound is just a wiener dog!! Yes, you read that right. Now you might be wondering how that could be possible since I know I at least have always called them wiener dogs. Apparently, dachshound is the correct spelling for the official breed name, which it pronounced like "doxin" and people have nicknamed the breed "wiener dog" because it looks like a wiener.

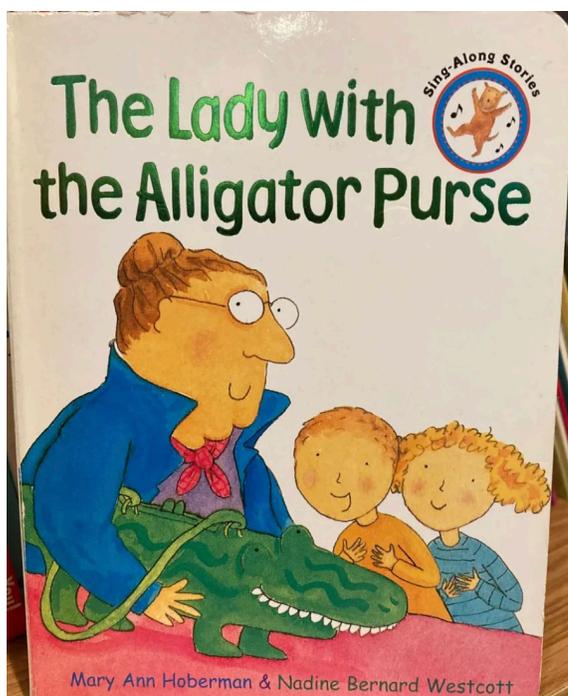

So now I have a new goal, finding the first person to call them wiener dogs because that person should apply for The Bullsheet! That's right, we love a good wiener joke over here. At least I do.

IF YOU ALSO LIKE WIENERS
APPLY TO THE BULLSHEET
(ALSO EVEN IF YOU DON'T LIKE WIENERS, I GUESS
WE'LL TAKE YOU)

Anyhoosy...please enjoy the pictures of wiener dogs that I have coated the back side of this sheet with ;)

NOSTALGIA CORNER

Remember this diva? I was thinking about her earlier this week and I don't really remember anything about this book's plot, but I thought I would try to recount it for us all. Basically it's about this lady and she has an alligator purse, which is confusing because it's shaped like an alligator so I don't know if it's actually made of alligator skin which feels important because she could easily have voted for either party with the energy she's bringing to the function. So, yeah, she has these kids but like I don't think they are actually hers, I feel like it's a nanny situation or something. I remember there being a doctor involved so maybe the kids' parents are sick with like polio or something, I don't really remember when this book came out so it could have been the scarlet fever for all I know. I also remember there being a bath tub and soap involved so maybe the lady was giving the kids a bath before bed and then the alligator purse got wet and turned into an actual alligator. Or maybe not, who knows?

DID YOU COME HERE FOR WEINER DOGS?? SORRY FOOL, I WAS ONLY JOKING

Lucy Dale,
Head Writer (no joke)

Here's a weiner cat for ya! If you're going to be reading my articles in the Bullsheet, you should know that I never support dog-based propaganda.

PSA: PLEASE HOLD THE DOOR!!

mad woman

I don't know if its all the homework you all did over summer or what but people on this campus have not been holding the doors recently, and yeah, I am talking to the straight men. So I am doing a public service and teaching you all the steps of how to hold the door like a gd pro.

Step 1: As you're approaching a door, check if you can see behind you through the glass on the door like a rearview mirror, if not, as you put your hand on the handle, look over your shoulder and check to see if there is anyone within 10 miles of you that might want to enter through the same door that you are entering currently.

Step 2: Open the door and turn around fully so you can look into the person's soul and let them know that you have now committed to holding the door for them and you can't go back now so they better start awkwardly fast walking or they will gain yet another opp on this campus.

Step 3: Cry.

Staff "dog breed" Box

Carter "bulldog" Seipel, Managing Editor
Christine "labrador" Trueh, Senior Editor
Leah "golden retriever" Jackson, Senior Editor
Lindsey "husky" George, Sophomore Editor
Lucy "weiner dog" Dale, Head Writer
Arianna "beagle" Griffiths, Senior Writer
Elliot "poodle" Harpham, Senior Writer
Eleanor "german shepherd" Mason, Junior Writer
William "chihuahua" Eddleman, Sophomore
Lucy "pug" Hollingsworth-Hays, Sophomore Writer
Hayley "rottweiler" Shay, Sophomore Writer

