

The Bullsheet, a forum for news, humor, and community dialogue, is funded by DCGA, recycles, and is printed each day that classes are in session. Submissions must be sent before our editors shamble into the office for next day publication via email to: bullsheet@denison.edu. Submissions herein solely reflect the opinions of the authors.

Edited last night by:
CARTER S.
Delivered this morning by:
ELLIOT H.

September 15th, 2025

GRANVILLE'S "MOST COPYRIGHT-FREE" PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 13

GET INVOLVED: 1 WEEK LEFT TO APPLY

Balancing college life can be hard. You're either an over achiever who still feels like they should be doing more or you've completely isolated yourself from everyone and everything and you're starting to wonder if that was a healthy choice. Well good news for you...

BULLSHEET APPLICATIONS OPEN UNTIL SEPTEMBER 22ND!

We Need:

- Writers
- Artists
- Scam Artists
- Modern day philosophers
- A copyright lawyer to approve our posters

We DONT Need:

- Singers
- Slow walkers
- Unfunny ppl
- Ancient philosophers
- A third person named Lucy
- AI

WHY JOIN THE BULLSHEET?

Half of campus hates us, the other half hasn't heard of us, and you write semi-weekly just for the sheet to be thrown away more than it's read. This is all true, BUT once a week you might make someone chuckle. Is that not worth it to you? "No?" Did I mention it's still a lot of fun?

Plus you get bragging rights!

Original poster by the Bullsheet corporation.

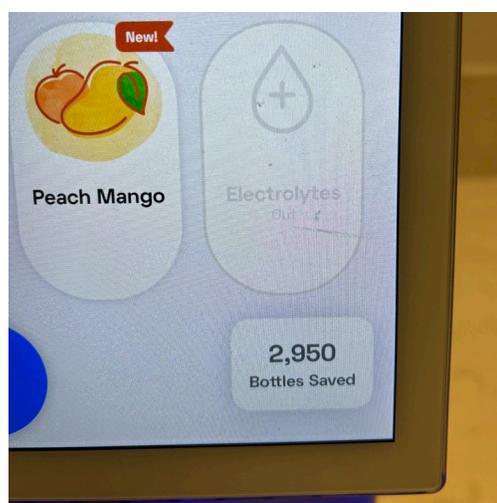

Any similarities to another organization's art are purely coincidental.

So you can't sue us ;)

BREAKING NEWS: CAMPUS LIGHT ON ELECTROLYTES

Carter Seipel,
Electrolyte-less in Granville

Bevi, Denison's high-tech sequel to water, has been sweeping the campus! Drawn in by the drink fountain's screen, students have been enjoying lemon and cucumber water at rates never seen before. Life on campus has never been so sweet (or lemony), but alas, nothing good (or cucumbery) lasts forever.

Pictured above is the Bevi machine's sticky screen with a grayed out electrolyte option

Last week disaster struck when the Bevi machine ran out of electrolytes. Now the Bullsheet's vast team of researchers have not gotten back to me on what exactly an electrolyte is but we do know one thing for sure; without electrolytes campus has been plunged into chaos.

Here's everything that happened in the past week alone:

- Mass dehydration
- Every single athlete lost their "big game" (and according to Gatorade commercials it's those precious electrolytes that cause them to win)
- All electric scooters ran out of electricity
- My plants shriveled away
- Professors fell behind schedule two weeks earlier than forecasted
- Parking became even harder to find
- I cried

DISCRIMINATION LEFT ON CAMPUS

Carter Seipel,
Managing Editor (no joke)

Let me begin by saying that I love my senior apartment. The water pressure works, I have privacy, and the kitchen fools me into thinking I might learn how to cook this year. I don't want to complain, but I figured it's necessary if it could be of benefit to my community. What community is that? Lefties! Not in the political sense but in the hand sense. That's right, I'm bravely coming out as left handed and with this news in mind, look at this photo:

Notice anything odd? No, not the Oxford University mug. I'm smart enough to have one of those. I'm talking about the desk itself. This layout is awful for a left handed individual.

Sure, there's just enough space for your left arm to write if you don't mind letting your left elbow dangle off the side, but that's all the room you get! Want a drink by your dominant hand? Well now you're risking a major spill. Same goes for your overpriced textbooks. Do you really want that to fall off your desk? It's a rental! Guess you'll have to thumb through pages with that puny nondominant hand (often referred to as the submissive hand).

Our rooms are supposed to be customizable and reflect us students as individuals, but this desk's built-in drawers lock you into creating a right hand-favored setup. Seriously, who approved such a vile contraption? Were no lefties consulted? Consider this further proof that diversity is vital in every workplace. Even desk designers!

Now I'm aware it would be unrealistic to personalize every student's room to their hand orientation, but a serious journalistic article like this one needs a call to action. So, what should we do about this? I, for one, suggest that every left-handed student fed up with this oppression should paint giant green "L's" all over their desks and dorm rooms. Will you have to pay a fine for failing your room check? Absolutely! Will it still stick it to the (right handed) man? Probably. I mean, "the man" won't have to do the actual cleaning, but maybe if we paint enough, he'll still hear about it. So, what are you waiting for? Get to decorating your dorm rooms with those big green L's!

Until then, I'll be sitting back at my desk's rocking chair and longing for the good old days when desks were hand-neutral.

Staff "Want a Bevi?" Box

Carter "Yes!" Seipel, Managing Editor

Christine "No thanks" Trueh, Senior Editor

Leah "Ew no" Jackson, Senior Editor

Lindsey "Sure" George, Sophomore Editor

Lucy "No!" Dale, Head Writer

Arianna "Why?" Griffiths, Senior Writer

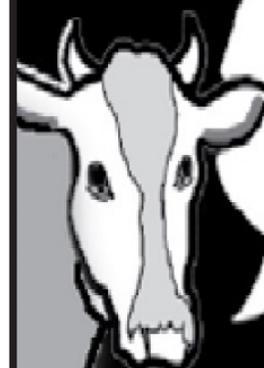

Elliot "Duh!" Harpham, Senior Writer

Eleanor "Of course" Mason, Junior Writer

William "Of course not" Eddleman, Sophomore

Lucy "ig" Hollingsworth-Hays, Sophomore Writer

Hayley "A what?" Shay, Sophomore Writer

I bet the Denisonian wishes they uncovered
something this big!

POOBIE
RULEZ
Bullsheets 2!
Denisonian 3!!