GRANVILLE'S "MOST FAM-FRIENDLY" PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 20

HAPPY (ALMOST) FAMILY WEEKEND!

Lindsey George,
Excited

This weekend in Granville, thousands (millions? billions?) of loved ones will come to campus to visit their dear Denisonians. It will be a weekend full of fun, festivities, and family! While Denison has a multitude of exciting events planned for students and their visitors, I have a few more ideas for you. Check out the list below and start planning your itinerary!

1. Eat dinner at Harvest: Harvest is the perfect spot for a cozy family dinner. Don't worry about waiting in line either; on a weekend like this, you'll have no problem being seated as soon as you walk inside.
2. Enjoy a leisurely breakfast in Curtis or Huffman: There's nothing your families will love more than experiencing the delicious, rejuvenating taste of dining hall eggs and oatmeal. They'll be happy to know exactly how you're dining up here on the hill.
3. Take a campus tour: Instead of answering all of your family's questions about campus yourself, hand it over to the real experts, the Denison docents. Delegating this role will give you 50 minutes to sit back, relax, and listen to someone else relay information to your relatives.
4. Visit the Bandershatch: There's nothing like ending a Saturday night with a snagel at the Bandy. Everyone deserves to try the delicious Denison specialty, especially your parents after a night at the frats...
5. No family coming this weekend? No problem. Borrow from a friend! I bet they won't mind sharing all too much. In all seriousness, I'm sure any family would be happy to have their kids' friend(s) tag along. They really do love to get to know the friends...

SO YOU DIDN'T GET RAPTURED-A GUIDE William Eddleman, Unraptured

Hello sinners and heretics – as you know, the rapture was yesterday. It took us Denison University students a while to figure this out, since it seems that everybody on our debauched campus was left behind while all those TikTok evangelicals got beamed up. I'm disappointed, but not surprised. But never fear! I'm putting together a guide for how to live in this new world.

Now, from what we know from the Book of Revelation, the next seven years are going to be rough. There will be woes, trials, sorrows, and even tribulations. It is the apocalypse, after all. But you (yes, you!) can get through this!

First of all, you have to be ready for anything. The judgments coming from the wrath of God in the bible are no joke. There could be warfare, extreme weather, mass death, evil leaders, rivers drying up... uh.... I mean....

I stand corrected. Looks like business as usual. Guess I'd better go to class...

LORDE SAYS
APPLY TO THE BULLSHEET!

This summer, I was lucky enough to spend my afternoons with two of the most darling kids ever. In the two months I spent with them, I gathered some priceless quotes from this duo that I cannot keep from you any longer. So, without further ado, I present to you only SOME of the iconic quotes of a 5 and 6 year old, with little to no context.

“Everyone knows about french fries, it’s just that no one really cares about them.”

“Turning trash into stuff is my job now.”

“I love vinegar.”

“Too strawberry”

“Did you know that Katy Perry is dating the president of the United States?”

“I feel good for the ducks.”

“Too nothing.”

“She looks rid-idk-lee-us”

*Pretending to be a teacher* “Today, six year olds, and today, teenagers, we are going to go on holiday.”

“Too cannibal.”

“Nothing is better than going potty.”

“That’s her house, and this is my flying carpet.”

“Too howdy partner.”

“You can be a queen when you grow up, it’s just that you have to know all your countries.”

Six year old: “Foxes scare me.”

Five year old: “Don’t worry, I’m double jointed.”

Me: “I love your outfit”

5 year old: “You’re welcome.”

“I’m gonna go poop on the potty.”
