GRANVILLE'S "MOST HAMSTER INFESTED" PUBLICATION

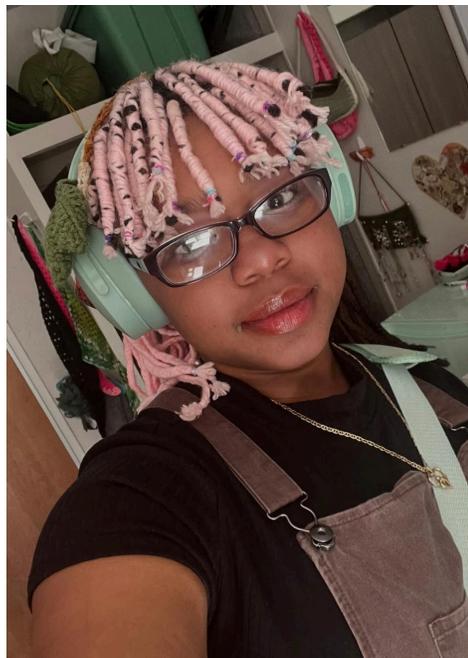

Vol. XLV, No. 35

OUR FAMILY IS GETTING BIGGER... 2025 BULLSHEET NEW MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Lilly Andrews - When she isn't role playing as Morrissey, Lilly Andrews is showing off her impressive card shuffling skills! She's so good at it she might even throw herself a magic card themed birthday party. Her other major skills include being able to read and sensing energies. She's so good at sensing energies, she could tell that Christine is secretly the illegitimate granddaughter of Thatcher and Reagan just mere moments after meeting Chrstine. Speaking of meet/meat, Lilly claims she could eat an entire horse in just 45 minutes, but we seriously have our doubts. She is also open to eating Mark Zuckerberg should the opportunity arise. Until then, enjoy your time on the Bullsheet! We're happy to have you, Lilly!

Anna Crum - Arnold S. is a name that could refer to a lot of different people, but today it refers to Anna Crum! You may recognize her from the podcast you can't see or hear, but we recognize her as a self-proclaimed "artist of not arting!" Speaking of art, Anna will soon be helping the Bullsheet create buzzy boyfriend asmr ($5 per minute). Anna also has very strong opinions about headwear. First, she decided Elliot must be named Carter because of his hat and really hated William's signature bandana. According to Anna, the ideal place for bandanas, which are really just split up blankets, are out of her sight. Welcome aboard, Anna Bandana!

Aiyana Harrison - Aiyana is NOT a family guy. She hates kids, the British, and dead people (but would date Prince). However, she does like dressing like a nun, the Amish, and tomatoes. Did you know that her perfect sandwich is all tomato? Aiyana might tell you she's a vegetarian, but she's actually really hungry for horse meat. She would even beat former Denison professor Jonathon Going in an arm wrestling match for a slice of horse. She's confident she would win because of Going's fancy neck high collar. Before you ask, Aiyana's favorite color of crayon is like a bluish green, but she probably prefers the green parts because she often goes by "Greenie." Thank you for joining us, Aiyana!

MEMBERS ON THE BACK!

OUR FAMILY IS STILL GETTING BIGGER... 2025 BULLSHEET NEW MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Meredith Havre - Meredith is most likely a witch. Not only is she really good at magic tricks, but she can also identify crow sounds, has read a book titled “Fortune Favors the Dead,” and can even name five metals (gold, steel, silver, aluminum and tin)! She claims to love whole milk but decided to call herself Carbonated Water and showed up to her interview with a cup filled with nothing but ice. Equally confusing, she was the second person to mistake Elliot for Carter. Her favorite Bullsheet article is Leah’s Halloween costume guide, but Meredith would happily kick Leah out to join the staff! Speaking of favorites, her favorite dinosaur is the triceratops, and her favorite Chris is Pratt. Hopefully comedy writing will become her second favorite hobby, just after bird watching! Welcome to the sheet, Meredith!

Lily Reaser - Lily, the German Scientologist, may be illiterate, but that does not stop her from spitting a mean freestyle under her rap name “Lil-Y.” When she’s not rapping, she’s most likely working on her screenplay titled “Sassy Man Apocalypse.” While we’re all excited to read it, there is some concern over her ability to name characters. She named the staff’s pet hamster “Hamster Hamster.” Its middle name? Also hamster. Lily’s secret third talent is identifying John Mudd noises. She left the entire staff puzzled as to exactly what a “John Mudd” was even after performing a perfect John Mudd impression alongside Eleanor. Lily’s description of a “white box with ears” sums John Mudd up, but we’re still eagerly waiting to figure out what a “GORF” is. Happy to have ya’, Lily!

Thanks again to all who applied (even you)! Remember that the Bullsheet is always open to submissions from students (and faculty!), all you have to do is send a finished piece to:
