IND 010: Practical Jackhammering: An Introduction

Attributes: Oral Communication (R) Manual Labor (ML)

Course Description: Due to the overwhelming student interest in the ongoing Doane renovation, Denison is proud to offer an immersive and educational experience in construction. Students will develop critical skills in noise tolerance, architectural and interior design, and philosophical acceptance of perpetual "opening next year" promises. Construction gear and tools will be provided through the Denison Bookstore. Please contact the Registrar for more information.

Prerequisites: None

Time: 6:00 AM - 7:20 AM MWF Lab 9:00 AM - 5:00 PM TR

Course Credits: 4

Restrictions: Only Freshman are eligible for enrollment.

DS100: How to Take Yourself Too Seriously

Attributes: Oral Communication (R) Social Science (E)

Course Description: Do you post your Dean's list achievement to LinkedIn? Do you do it every semester? Then you will love learning more about how to take yourself too seriously (you're already halfway there!). IN this course, you will learn how to utilize technology to your advantage (how to filter out jobs that pay less than 90k/year on Handshake, LinkedIn commenting seminars, etc.), how to start conversations with strangers ("Where do you go to school?" How is our ROTH looking?" and "Oh, I'm thinking of going into consulting.")). This course includes a travel component to Boston.

Prerequisites: None

Time: 9:30 AM - 10:20 AM MWF

Course Credits: 4

Restrictions: Seniors and GC majors only

ARTS 328: Tailoring Taylor

Attributes: Fine Arts (A) Social Science (E) Humanities (U)

Course Description: This hands-on course explores the intersection of contemporary pop culture and traditional garment construction through the lens of Taylor Swift's iconic style evolution. Students will analyze Taylor Swift's fashion across her eras and use machine and hand tailoring techniques to design, draft, and create original garments inspired by her aesthetics throughout time. Emphasis will be on Taylor's Eras (Fearless, Red, 1989, Reputation, Midnights, and Life of a Showgirl).

Prerequisites: None

Time: 12:00 PM - 2:20 PM MWF

Course Credits: 4

Crosslisted with AHVC 300

LOUVRE SUSPECTS IDENTIFIED

Ms. Mona Lisa

A daring heist pulled off in 7 minutes, with nothing more than a forklift, an angle grinder, and Lorde. No victims, no arrests, and executed in broad daylight, right in the heart of Macron's France. There's only one kind of group capable of pulling off such a crime this bold.

If you see these men, please report to the French Authorities.*

THE Y2K BUG: 25 YEARS LATER...

Christine Trueh,
ITS expert

It seems like the fear of computer failures of 2000 has finally come back to haunt us. Here's a list of websites/ companies who suffered from the global outage yesterday.
